A School of Solid Glass
Gossips Are Criminals

NEWS more important than bootleg crime or oil reserve stealing is this: Berlin will build a great public school made almost entirely of glass. Held up by a frame of steel and concrete, the school walls will be of thick plate glass, admitting sunlight everywhere.

Later may come schools of new quartz glass that admits health giving actinic rays.

The ages of stone, bronze and iron may be followed by the age of glass, which will mark man's final exit from the damp, dark cave to all day sunlight. Houses of glass—that stones will not break, and highways of glass, one above the other, in great cities, will be interesting steps in man's progress.

Berlin's public school of plate glass, to make the day beautiful for teachers and children, will be set in a beautiful park, after the fashion of California, where the most beautiful buildings are great public schools, each in its park grounds.

Our richest city, by the way, allows children to study in dark, old school buildings, some of them fire traps. It is not that New York City cannot afford public schools finer than those of California or Berlin. The people of New York entrust their public schools to those that apparently do consider our public school system either not important or not desirable.

Germany's new penal code, as important as the Berlin public school of plate glass, plans to protect society from criminals, instead of merely punishing crime in a hard and fast way, as though for revenge.

And, most gratifying, gossips will be included among the criminal classes. Gossip, in the world's long history, has done more real harm than murder. Gossip breaks hearts, and condemns them to endless suffering. That is worse than killing.

The City of Syracuse spends on motoring seventeen cents out of every dollar of income—and old fashioned finance, wagging its head, says "extravagance." Buying new automobiles takes ten and a quarter cents, gasoline three and a half cents, accessories three cents. And that's the best investment of seventeen cents on the dollar that Syracuse could make.

If a hop toad could buy wings for seventeen cents of his dollar and fly instead of painfully hopping in the dust, he'd be a fool not to spend the seventeen cents. Automobiling is flying. Get a car if you have no one, or a better car if you afford it.

The New York Times dwells the financial achievements of F. Giannini, head of the Bank of Italy and allied corporations, with five hundred millions in capital, and shares with a market value exceeding a billion dollars.

Mr. Giannini, says the Times, gained his prestige in California in the San Francisco fire. While the fire was burning, he hauled the cash from the vaults of his burning bank, down the peninsula, where he buried it in his

START TAX CUT BILL

Washington, Oct. 31 (A.P.).—For the fourth time since the war the House Ways and Means Committee was called back to the capital today to begin drafting of a new revenue bill that will reduce the nation's tax burden.

Hearing will be confined, if possible, to a ten-day period. The committee proposes to expedite the work so that the prospective measure may be presented on the House floor shortly after Congress convenes the first week in December.

It was generally regarded that the treasury recommendation would be well under $300,000,000, many members advocating a tax cut of approximately that figure, although Representative Green recently cautioned his colleagues against optimistic predictions as to the size of the reduction to be made.

THIEVES GET ONLY $20 IN TWO SAFE-CRACKINGS

Providence, Oct. 31 (A.P.).—Knocking combination knobs off two safes thieves secured $20 from offices of two local companies.

The strong box of the M. R. Horton Company, dealers in building materials, yielded the money while that of Joseph Olney & Sons, Inc., coal dealers, was empty.

PROBE OF BREAKS IN HUB STORES LEADS TO SUSPICION OF PLOT

An investigation of two of the series of big fur robberies in Boston during the past two weeks was launched today by the police on suspicion of collusion between the owners and the thieves.

Various strange circumstances not generally found in genuine thefts of this kind, led to the ordering of the investigation, officials at police headquarters admitted.

Mid Fall weather affecting the sales of furs is responsible for "fake" robberies, if any have occurred, it was declared by the police.

Besides the fur owners and the thieves certain dealers are tentatively under suspicion of acting as "fences" to dispose of the goods, police said.

One object of such plots, it was also pointed out, would be to collect insurance for the losses and also to collect from the "fences" when they were able to dispose of the furs through the "second-hand trade."

Police declared that they had met with difficulty in some cases in trying to get clews and information from the owners whose stores had been broken into and in one instance found an owner reluctant to identify pastry coats which had been recovered.

An instance of collusion in fur thefts came to the attention of club authorities several years ago, during a similar period of mild, unseasonable weather, and the resulting investigation caused the imprisonment of one of the plotters.

Secrecy surrounds the names of the men assigned to conduct the investigation, but it was admitted that they are working in small groups and watching suspicious places and individuals.

'DRY' SLEUTHS ON DUTY IN DRESS SUITS TONIGHT

Boston and Federal liquor men disguised in evening clothes and working together, will be on the lookout for liquor at night clubs holding Hallowe'en celebrations tonight.

Following a conference between Captain George Parker, prohibition administrator, and Captain George W. Patterson and Lieutenant Daniel Hines of the Boston liquor squad, it was arranged for the two units to combine for the second time in the history of the local department.

Reservations have been made in all the leading night clubs and members of both squads, carefully coached so they will recognize each other, will be present in "soup and fish" on the watch for liquor law violations, meanwhile trying to avoid being taken for waiters. By working together the officers will get both possessors and sellers of liquor, they hope. They first worked together at the opening of a night club recently.

Hotels have made no special preparations for celebrations, but on the assumption merrymakers will rat them visits the officers will make visits to the hostelries.

RUMANIAN GARRISONS PUT ON WAR FOOTING

Belgrade, Jugoslavia, Oct. 31 (A.P.)—Bucharest dispatches to Politika say that all Rumanian garrisons have been placed on a war basis with a view to any eventualities that may result at the meeting of the National Peasants' Party at Alba Julia.

The National Peasants' Party has shown itself as somewhat favorable toward a possible restoration of Prince Carol to the Rumanian throne. One of the severest critics that the Bratiano government has had in its handling of the Carol incident was M. Maniu, leader of the Peasants' Party.

London, Oct. 31 (A.P.).—Official advices from the Rumania government received in London today declare that the situation throughout the country is normal. The messages denied that a revolution had broken out.

$20,000 ALIMONY FOR BROOKLINE WOMAN IN WINNING OF DIVORCE

Because she was called a "dumbbell," was sworn at and struck and shoved around, according to her testimony in Probate Court at Dedham today, Mrs. Rose Burger of Brookline obtained a divorce decree, custody of two children, $2,500 for counsel fees and lump sum alimony of $20,000.

Her petition for the divorce was not contested by her husband, Louis Burger, Boston stock broker, and the alimony agreement was reached out of court. Counsel fees, it was stated, go to Attorney Lowell A. Mayberry of Boston.

Testifying that her husband among other things refused to buy stockings for her and told her that a pair should last a year, Mrs. Isabelle C. Eaton of Quincy was granted divorce from Edwin C. Eaton of Worcester.

FOUR PLUNGE TO DEATH WHEN AIR PILOT FAINTS

New York, Oct. 31 (I.N.S.).—Belief that Pilot Leroy Thompson, 28, of Waterbury, Ct., fainted at the controls of the new Fairchild monoplane, which crashed with a death toll of four near New Brunswick, N. J., yesterday, was expressed today by officials of the Colonial Air Transportation, owners of the ship.

The tragedy occurred but a short distance from the spot where a Reynolds Airway plane had crashed seven persons to their deaths on September 12.

Thompson, pilot of the big ship, was a veteran in the air. He also was manager of the New York branch of the Colonial company.

FAINTING PILOT COST LOSS OF 4 LIVES IN MAIL PLANE CRASH

Four Lose Lives ~ When Death Pilots ~ Plane in Crash

WHERE FOUR DIED IN WRECKAGE OF AIRCRAFT

Shattered remains of big plane in which Leroy Thompson, pilot; his fiancee, Miss Elizabeth McGowan, and two others were crashed to death at New Brunswick, N. J. Pilot Thom pson is believed to have fainted at the controls, thus causing the plane to fall. The aircraft was up 1,000 feet when it plunged to earth, dooming all on board.

fiancee, Elizabeth McGowen, 25, Newark school teacher.

PLANE PLUNGES DOWN.

Investigation was said to have revealed that the motor of the plane was roaring smoothly up to the moment that it was plunged into the earth.

The other two victims of the crash were Wesley Hubbell, 27, Hackensack, N. J., and George Haubner, 25, Hillside, N. J., both telephone company employes.

The plane crashed in a field a mile south of Hadley Field, eastern terminus of the air mail. Two hunters who said the machine narrowly missed them as it fell from a height of about 200 feet, believed it went into a tail spin as Thompson executed a sharp bank to turn north. The engine continued to roar until it struck earth.

The engine was buried in the ground and the fuselage was crushed. Examination showed that the four victims were killed instantly.

The plane had taken off from Hadley after having flown from Boston.

"I knew something was wrong with it when the plane started to turn," Charles Drake, who witnessed the accident, said. "Two men were in front and a girl and boy in the back. I don't remember exactly what happened. I was paralyzed with fright."

RUSH TO FIELD.

Within an hour after the crash all roads leading to the field had become crowded with motorists rushing to the scene. Thousands swarmed over the field, and the moment the bodies were removed from the wreckage and taken to a New Brunswick morgue a connected rush toward the plane was made by souvenir hunters. Much of the fuselage had disappeared before police battled their way through and roped off the spot.

Miss Olive Oswald, at whose home he and Hubbell roomed, believed the men were boyhood friends and that both came from Southern Connecticut. Hubbell and Haubner were employed at the local offices of the New York Telephone Company.

Close friends and fellow pilots of Thompson at the Boston Airport were saddened by his death and joined in expressing tribute to the abilities of Thompson as a pilot and his lovableness as a man.

Mother of Girl Killed in Plane Opposed Flight

Bloomfield, N. J., Oct. 31 (A.P.)—Parents of Miss Elizabeth M. MacGowan, school teacher of Teaneck, who was one of four persons killed yesterday in an airplane crash near Hadley airport, today told of having attempted to dissuade her from making the fatal flight.

"It's all right, mother, you're just old-fashioned," she told her mother, Mrs. James H. MacGowan. The father denied reports his daughter was engaged to marry Leroy Thompson, pilot of the plane. He said Thompson had known his daughter only three weeks and this was her third ride in a plane.

The last the family heard from her was Thursday, when the daughter telephoned to her mother of the intended flight.

"Oh, don't go, something might happen," the mother pleaded in vain.

clerk, town auditor, treasurer and other officials were undamaged, but were only saved after a grim fight by firemen who carried hose lines into the interior of the smoke-filled building.

The hall is a two-story wooden structure built in 1870. Firemen said that, given a few minutes more headway, the flames could not have been prevented from consuming the entire structure.

The flames ate up through the partitions to offices in the front of the building. It was necessary to chop away entire walls, in some instances, to reach the fire.

A general alarm was immediately There were no prisoners in the cells of the police station. Had there been they probably would have been suffocated, police said, as the smoke appeared to be particularly dense in this part of the building.

PLANES SCOUR SEAS FOR IRISH GALE VICTIMS

London, Oct. 31 (A.P.).—The death list in the great gale which has swept over British Isles since Friday today stood at more than 60. Most of the deaths were due to the destruction of fishing craft along the west coast of Ireland, where 50 persons were reported to have perished.

Dublin, Oct. 31 (A.P.).—Two Irish Free State airplanes were searching the Galway and Mayo coast today for the bodies of victims of the Irish fishing fleet overtaken by a great storm on Saturday.

It is now feared that more than fifty men were drowned. Virtually every breadwinner at Lecan Bay, a village in County Mayo, was drowned within 200 or 300 yards of his home when the fishing boats were dashed to pieces on the rocks. One family lost five men.

In Cleggan, County Galway, and nearby fishing towns, 21 fishermen are missing. Eight bodies have been washed ashore.

Heartrending scenes occurred in the stricken districts as news of the disaster came to the families of the fishermen.

Father Michael Quinn, parish priest of Cleggan, celebrated a requiem mass for those who perished and it was with difficulty that he completed the service.

Women and children and even men cried aloud in anguish, and many were carried from the church in a fainting condition.

Thousands of souls driven in by the storm sought shelter in the cliffs and their cries during the gale's fury added to the eerie work of rescue parties seeking the missing men.

At least seventeen vessels have been entered as casualties on Lloyds books up to this afternoon. None of these was of major importance.

Some of the liners plying between the United States and England have struck a depression area at sea. Among these reporting was the Aquitania and Mauretania.

GIRL, 8, LACKS CLOTHING TO GO TO SCHOOL

Leominster, Oct. 31.—Mrs. Olivia Paoli, widowed mother of four, stands in District Court today with police witnesses to corroborate her statement that the only reason she did not send her eight-year-old daughter to school was the fact that the child had no suitable clothing.

Left virtually destitute by the death of her husband several months ago, the widow has had to spend all the money she could earn to feed four hungry little mouths.

There has been no money for clothing, Mrs. Paoli considering herself fortunate to be able to scrape up enough to buy food at times. The Overseers of the Poor have been appealed to but, because of legal entanglements, aid was refused.

Then it was reported to the authorities that the eight-year-old daughter was not going to school and the widow was summoned to court. Police who investigated at the Paoli home reported that the mother's statement was correct, the clothing of the girl in question is not suitable for her to go to school.

It is hoped today some solution of the plight of the widow trying to rear four children and that out of the court case there may come some aid for the little family.

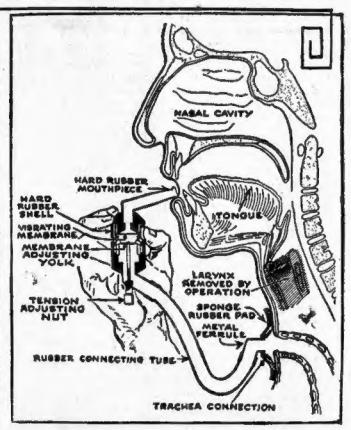
Although his larynx and vocal chords were removed in a throat operation, the Delaware Senator and capitalist is now able to talk. His "mechanical larynx" is the invention of three New York doctors.



HOW THE DEVICE OPERATES

The user breaths through the "mechanical larynx" and thereby originates sound which is projected into the mouth to be transformed into speech. The chief features of the device are a rubber membrane stretched across the inside of a hard rubber sound box, a pitch regulating device, a mouthpiece which fits in the metal stem in the top of the sound box and a flexible connection to be strapped over the trachea opening about under the user's collar button.

NO U. S. PROBE OF SHIP CRASH

Though the lives of eleven fishermen out of Boston were snuffed out when the Cosulich Line steamship Presidente Wilson rammed the fishing schooner Avalon off Highland Light Saturday, no Department of Commerce investigation is in the offing, according to a statement today by John Stewart, inspector of steam vessels at Boston.

"The Cosulich liner carries the Italian flag and therefore is not within our jurisdiction," he said. The schooner Avalon is a motor-driven craft, giving us no investigation powers from that point."

Stewart advanced the opinion that the only relief the United States could offer either survivors or relatives of the victims was in the Federal Court civil sessions.

LET GIRLS POP, HER IDEA

MISS VIRGINIA LIND BUQUO

Miss Buquo believes women should propose marriage with the right and privilege to approach only those men who fascinate them. It would lessen the divorce evil and raise the institution of marriage to a sound basis, she says.

PREDICTS GIRLS WILL PROPOSE

"Every year should be 'cap year for a woman. Woman must be made happy and she will only get that way when she gets the man she wants instead of the one she has to take."

Such is the contention of Miss Virginia Lind Buquo, psychologist, poet, journalist, author and lecturer who, after years devoted to the study of this subject, is soon to tell the Ford Forum Council about it prior to a public address on her proposal to end male proposals.

Woman should propose marriage, Miss Buquo maintains, with the right and privilege to approach only those men who fascinate and interest her and whom she can view wholesomely as the father of her children.

"Such a set-back of conventions would lessen the divorce evil and raise the institution of marriage to a sound basis.

"If women should do the proposing they would select as their life-mates men who appeal not only to their hearts but to their heads. Years of suppression, inhibitions and mollycoddling has made woman the pursued instead of the pursuer, although some very clever females, subtly and indirectly and unknowingly to the male, work their feminine charms on those whom they would seek as their own.

"The flappers object to my opinion that women should propose marriage to the men of their choice. They have their wits and nothing else and knowing how susceptible men are to such wiles they refuse to become the aggressors.

"Girls are best at wooing and there is much they can teach the men."

London, Oct. 31 (I.N.S.).—One of the most powerful alliances in the history of Europe is in the final stages of its formation today.

This mighty combination of powers is headed by France and includes Belgium, Poland, Rumania, Czechoslovakia and Jugoslavia.

The final treaty—that between France and Jugoslavia—probably will be signed within ten days, according to information from Paris today.

This series of treaties, which statesmen believe to be aimed at Germany and Italy, is for "mutual protection" and not only adds to France's prestige but materially increases her political and military power.

Except upon their sea fronts Germany and Italy are virtually cut off from the balance of continental Europe, and a wall is built along the western frontier of Soviet Russia.

The plan to link up France with the "Little Entente" originated more than seven years ago.

KILLS INVALID WIFE AND SELF

South Orange, N. J., Oct. 31 (I.N.S.).—Apparently suddenly insane, Frederick Sanborne, 49, today shot and killed his wife, Maude, mortally wounded his son, Jack, 10, attacked his oldest son, Frederick, Jr., and then killed himself.

Police expressed the belief that Sanborne went mad as a result of a recent cut in his pay and worry over his wife's illness.

THIRTY DRIVEN OUT BY BLAZE IN CHARLESTOWN

Thirty lodgers, including several women, sought safety in flight early today when flames were discovered in a fruit store at No. 339 Main street, Charlestown. The fire was prevented from sweeping upward only by the prompt discovery by a passing citizen and the prompt arrival of fire apparatus.

Defective wiring is given as the cause of the blaze. Damage was estimated at about $3,000.

STAGE AND SCREEN

NEW EAST SIDE COMEDY AT SCOLLAY

The style of East Side comedy first made popular by "Abie's Irish Rose" is to be seen in "Clancy's Kosher Wedding," now running on the Scollay Sq. Olympia screen. It is typical comedy melodrama, as the title suggests. George Sidney is starring in it.

George Sidney

Sidney is one of those well-known stage stars who have made good in the movies. He has the advantage of a naturally comic figure. His features and gestures are expressive. Opposite him, in the role of the older Clancy, appears Will Armstrong, who is not so subtle as Sidney, but at least is as good as other film celebrities who have been handed Irish roles of late. Armstrong, like Sidney, also comes to the stage for many years before taking up screen work.

Cohen and Clancy are rival clothing dealers, constantly scrapping, as Jews and Irish are doing all the time in these East Side comedies, but the quarrels end in a truce, and a wedding that provides fine new screen production with its unique title. There is certainly a good deal of a family resemblance to all these East Side films.

Her Lease, who has been coming to the front rapidly out on the Movie Coast, and Sharon Lynn, who not so long ago was on the musical comedy stage, appear in the romantic roles. Ed Brady, Mary Gordon and Ann Brody are also prominent.

POLA NEGRI IN NEW FILM AT METROPOLITAN

Pola Negri, in a truly feminine role, one of great emotional strength, again distinguishes herself in "The Woman on Trial," at the Metropolitan. It is a powerful love drama, in which two intrigues merge to create an astonishing climax.

Pola Negri

One intrigue is nourished in the heart of a woman whose love compels her to follow a curious destiny. In love with a poor artist who is very ill, she marries a man of wealth so she may be able to provide suitable care for the real object of her ardor.

Tears are shed profusely throughout the picture, but here are lighter moments, scenes that finally traverse a rainbow of happiness. It is, in all, a finely balanced production.

The direction by Mauritz Stiller is of the skillful, artistic type that one naturally would expect from the man who made "Hotel Imperial." In the matter of support, Miss Negri has playing opposite her the capable and handsome Swedish actor Elnar Hanson, who appeared in "Barbed Wire." Splendid performances are given, too, by Arnold Kent, as the false friend and Andre Sarti as the husband of Miss Negri.

On stage at the Metropolitan the feature is "Florida." Jack Partington's spectacular beauty pageant and revue.

Blonde Heroine

PHYLLIS HAVER
Provides stimulus for the romantic needs of Rod La Rocque in "The Fighting Eagle" at the Keith-Albee Boston.

From debonaire prince to swashbuckling pirate goes Rod La Rocque in "The Fighting Eagle" at the Keith-Albee Boston. The picture is a glittering romance of love and adventure in the memorable days when Napoleon ruled Europe with an iron hand and held the world in awe—when brave Frenchmen gladly died to serve his vaulting ambition—when love of country, intrigue, bravery and daring were the passports to glory and fame.

"The Fighting Eagle," is an ante-bellum picture, with Rod La Rocque and Phyllis Haver in their best roles.

Wahletka, Indian mystic of the Cherokees, heads the vaudeville bill and gives an interesting entertainment to her hearers, drawing questions from their minds and answering them remarkably. Eugene Cox rolls, gives a novel act called "Pow Wigh! Fancies"; Herbert Faye & Co. keep the audience busy chuckling with his specialty act and styled "Laughology." Other acts and short films balance the program.

IRENE RICH ON SCREEN AT MODERN AND BEACON

Irene Rich in a picturing of Mark Canfield's dramatic romance, "The Desired Woman," tops the bill of new photoplays at the Modern and Beacon. The cast includes William Russell, William Collier, Jr., Douglas Gerrard, Jack Ackroyd and John Miljan. The associate picture is a comedy, "High School Hero," with a cast comprising Sally Phipps, an attractive newcomer, Nick Stuart, Charles Paddock and John Darrow. The Vitaphone presentations are Gene and Wills Howard in a comedy sketch, Roger Wolfe Kahn and his orchestra, and Bernardo de Pace, wizard of the mandolin.

Sally Phipps

Miss Rich is seen as the wife of a British army officer stationed in a remote military base in India. To relieve her boredom she patronizes a young soldier fresh from England and he falls in love with her Their affair reaches a crisis and indiscreetly she goes with the young man into the desert country. The adjustment of the complication provides an interesting denouement.

MODERN MUSIC HEARD AT SYMPHONY

By MOSES SMITH

Listening to George Copeland play at Symphony Hall in his first recital here in four years, the hearer tended to indulge in reminiscences. For to him more than perhaps to any other man we owe the introduction of music by the modern French and Spanish composers into current concert programs. At a time when Debussy and Ravel were still names of questionable reputation, Mr. Copeland was giving these composers sympathetic performance.

Debussy, or whose pieces the pianist played three, is now an established figure in the concert hall. And no one shudders nowadays at names like Momps Nin and Infante, who furnished music for the second half of Mr Copeland's program yesterday But we are still be grateful to him for his exquisite interpretation of these men. No one who has visited Boston, save possibly Gieseking, has so captivated an audience with his performance of the moderns as has this Boston pianist. The "Puck Dance" of Debussy was repeated, and the others would have been, too, if the audience had had its way.

In the rendition of Chopin's first Ballade and Schumann's Symphonic Studies, which made up the greater part of the first half of the program, Mr. Copeland was not so happy. Somehow he did not bestow upon them the caressing touch he used with the moderns. There were moments of beautiful playing, and the broad outlines stood fairly clear, but one could question many of the details.

The audience sensed this, too, for it was much more cordial toward the pianist during the performance of the moderns. In fact it made him come back for a "second concert" of this type of music before it left the hall reluctantly.

"THE CRYSTAL CUP" TOPS OLYMPIA BILL

A daring drama, unusual in its theme and treatment, skillfully directed and acted, is "The Crystal Cup," picturization by Gertrude Atherton's novel at the Washington St. Olympia. "The Crystal Cup" reflects the turbulent soul of a sensitive woman, typified by the passion aroused by an unhappy experience of early youth, which affects her conduct and outlook on life for years.

Dorothy Mackaill

It affords Dorothy Mackaill featured in the feminine part, her best screen role, a role in which she acquits herself creditably.

Jimmy Lucas and company head the bill of vaudeville in a riotous travesty of the movies and melodrama called "Vampires and Fools."

Every Man Knows

That now-a-days it is as necessary to have a bath-robe or lounging gown as it is to have the proper assortment of shirts, ties and socks. Talbot & Co., 395 Washington St., have met this growing demand. And are offering this week a sale of cashmere and Navajo wool robes for $7.50 and $10.00. These robes are well tailored, faultlessly made, with cords and bindings carefully matched to carry out each tonal effect. In silk and brocaded gowns there is a wide range of colors and fabrics, with prices that start at $15.00.

Here's Startling News!

Eighty per cent. of the operators who give permanent waves, I'm told, are beginners Unlike a marcel, you have to live with your permanent 6 months or more. It can't be exchanged, either. Why not get the best? Mr. Truchon, at the Hollywood Bobbing Shop, 110 Tremont St., New Studio Bldg., will give you the perfect permanent at practically the same price as an inferior one. $10. (Nestle Circuline.) Trocolli finger waves, hair dyeing, marcels, scalp treatment are equally expert. Capitol 6487.

Genuinely French

Is Lait Innoxa, a liquid cleanser, skin food and powder base. Famous in Paris and European courts, featured in every smart shop on Fifth Ave., and now available in Boston at R. H. Stearns Co., 140 Tremont St. Endorsed by dermatologists for preserving healthy skin and restoring to tired faces the freshness and brilliancy of youth. Lait Innoxa, bottled in France, feeds impoverished tissues. Awakens your skin to complete rejuvenation $2. Protects the delicate, turbulent soul of a sensitive woman, typified by the passion aroused by an unhappy experience of early youth, which affects her conduct and outlook on life for years.

It affords Dorothy Mackaill featured in the feminine part, her best screen role, a role in which she acquits herself creditably.

Superfluous Poundage

Rings the knell of youth, beauty and efficiency. Can YOU afford to let unwanted flesh fasten itself to your frame? When a half gallon of a never-fail reducing lotion is only $1.50? Reducing Cream, $2. For rapid reducing, skilful oscillating treatments. Where? At Dorothy Wyndham's room 907, 24 West St. Wyndham's famous Wrinkle Chaser and Tissue Cream ($1); her Lettuce Cleansing Cream, 60c, and a combination of Winter Complexion Cream and Skin Whitener (2 jars) for $3.00 are real investments in beauty.

Character Is Shown

By your hands. If they're intelligently cared for they become really your pride and joy. Peggy Sage Rose Petal Nail Enamel is truly indispensable to the woman of culture and refinement. A single application means lovely lustre a week or longer. The complete box of remover, tint and varnish is $3. or you can purchase enamel (any shade) and remover for $2, or the enamel singly for $1.50. Don't forget Peggy Sage Nicotine Remover is $1, in company with the other Peggy Sage preparations at Filene's Toilet Goods Dept.

Marion Told Me

To mention especially her advance Christmas specials for the week this week. The dearest little rayon panties for $1.69—in adorable colors, and little appliqued flowers on the side. Two-piece pajama sets for $2.95, full-length robes to match, for $4.95, or both together for $7.85. Three-piece lounging sets — pajama suit and knee-length robe—$5.45 At Marion Desmond's, 5th floor, 38 Chauncy street, home of the Hope Chest plan, where you pay 50c, or $1.00 a week and at the end of the membership period bear away your prize of lovely Marion underthings and linens.

Perfect Charm

Like genius, is mainly a matter of attention to detail, not the least of which is milady's choice of perfumes. Loinceau of Paris has made for the discriminating a concentrated essence of perfume in lipstick form, put up in a most unusual case of white gold-white, delicately decorated in black and gold. Would you be alluring, possessing the mystery of Cleopatra? Make the Paris Exposition odor your own. Or would you exhale the spicy odors of India? For you the Brises des Indes. Besides these are the captivating Le Saison des Fleurs and the subtle Chypre. The sophisticated woman wears a touch of this highly concentrated perfume in the palms of her hands, behind a pink ear lobe, or delicately just under the nostril. $2.50 is the modest price of these priceless aids to charm. Also comes Loinceau's masterpiece, Le Fleuve Bleu perfume, in a beautiful dark blue opaque carved bottle for $12.00. Truly a remarkable perfume. Both of these are at Filene's Toilet Goods Counter, Street Floor, corner Summer and Washington Sts.

It Isn't Often We Find

Values such as I saw this week in much needed blanket bath robes for women and misses for $3.77. These are nice, woolly robes, long, well cut, in a variety of colors—grays, browns, tans, blues, lavenders, gayly flowered, and the ever popular Navajo effects. These are the well-known "Beacon" and "Lawrence" brand robes and confirm once more my contention that Houghton & Dutton Co., corner Tremont and Beacon Sts., are world beaters when it comes to offering their customers fine grade articles at popular prices. Who would rise in the cold, gray dawn and not appreciate the cozy warmth of one of these delightful robes? They come in all sizes from 38 to 44, brightly trimmed with cotton and cord, and substantial twisted worsted cords. I also found on a nearby counter a fine selection of flannelette gowns for those who like cold bedroom, but warm dreams. Generously cut where they should be generous, full length, with round, square, "V" shaped or turn-down-collar necks, and long sleeves, sizes 16 and 17, for just 69c! The kind you used to wrap your feet in when you were young.

Winter's Pageant

The gayest of the year, approaches. And where should its headquarters be but at Chandler's, corner Tremont and West Sts. in the Spanish Galleries, that new department inaugurated with all of Chandler's usual taste and distinction. The Spanish Galleries offer Boston women the high Chandler quality in women's wear, combined with remarkably low cost. They cater to the small woman—the woman in business and the home who has difficulty in getting coats and dresses to fit her without expensive alterations. For this woman there is a splendid assortment of first quality dresses in all the Fall and Winter colors and styles, and the majority of the prices range around $10.00. The vogue of jersey still holds and every well-dressed woman owns at least one. The popular "cow-boy" style featured this week is of fine quality wool jersey with a wide suede belt fitting snugly over the hips. Other styles and fabrics include boleros, jumpers, Russian blouses, pleated and plain skirts, in silks, crepes, velveteen and crepe combinations, all for $10.00.

Soft to the Sensitive

Skin, and with unusual stick-to-it-ive-ness is the exquisite Terri face powder featured by Meyer Jonasson. Regularly $1.50, for a limited time, Meyer Jonasson offers you a full size box of this popular powder with an exquisite imported bow dern. Complete for $1.50 Remember, too, that you are in need of another inimitable Tussy stick. To be found, tucked snugly in its gala lithe case, only at Meyer Jonasson's, Tremont and Boylston Sts. Priceless, Anne—yet priced at only $1.50.

A Little Knowledge

Is a dangerous thing! That's why Mrs. Young of the French Beauty Shop, 110 Tremont St., New Studio Bldg., has studied the inward nature and structure of hair, the oils, the tints of the twists — the whole science of the truly lovely and natural waves of a successful permanent, $10 for your entire head (Nestle Circuline). Go to the French Shop, too, for one of Mrs. Young's reviving facials. Mr. Burt's becoming bobs, or Marion's expert dying.

The Old Problem

Of selecting Christmas cards is solved once and for all when you set foot in the Handy Shop, Rm. 619, of the Little Bldg., 90 Boylston Street. For these are no ordinary cards, but lovely etchings, hand carved wood cuts, French and early English cards, Madonnas and many others I haven't room to mention. A very acceptable gift for a child is Chas. A. Dana's "Is There a Santa Claus?" and Bruce Barton's "Another Boy." $1.00 for a beautifully bound book. Also for $1.00 are lovely box assortments of Christmas cards, containing anywhere from twelve to twenty-five exquisite cards.

What Are the Wild Waves

Saying? If you'll listen closely you'll probably hear those wild, unruly waves about your ears murmuring that you ought to go up to Miss Cheney's, 5th Floor, 178 Tremont St., and have her retouch your permanent for the modest sum of $5.00. You'll love the Arneo scalp steamer, too, it's so restful to the head and revitalizing to permanents, restoring original loveliness. For the new permanent, do have Miss Cheney's Gem Air Wave, so safe and satisfactory, even for gray or dyed hair. Warm air does the trick Not an electric wire touches your head.

It's Open Season

And good hunting, down 'round the Seasonal Sales Stores, 54 Chauncy Street, and the Big Game is in the form of Over drapes, all colors and styles, with or without valances. Rayon and cotton damask in a pleasing striped pattern, $5.00 a complete set including valance. Velours in wanted colors, $6.50 com plete, or figured, $7.00. Antique Damask, the leading decorating fabric of the season, a beautiful rose and blue Jaspe effect with old gold, $7.60 set. Velour portieres made to order in three days, all attached and ready to hang in place, for $27.50.

"When the World

Seems dull and flat, I whip forth and buy a grand and gorgeous hat." I think every woman finds balm for all her woes in a new chapeau. And you're certainly going to perk up when you see the $10.00 and $15.00 hand made models Catherine Kane is giving you this week for $8.75. Smart combination in soleil and velvet, satin and velvet, metal cloth and velvet, and all velvet. Styles for matrons as well as the young girl, in good head sizes. The Little Bldg., 90 Boylston St., 2nd floor.

There's Never a Woman

But that's just what happens when you buy Lucile colored and fashioned Holeproof hose. Talbot's, 395 Washington St., offers you the correct Lucile shade for every ensemble in their famous $1.65 Holeproof semi-clifton stocking. Full fashioned of pure thread silk, coming way over the knee to a fine lisle hem. A beautiful medium-weight stocking for daytime and evening wear.

Dozens and Dozens

Of delighted customers call Evelyn's dresses the best values in Boston. Step into 8 Winter St., 3rd floor, and see the amazing bargains she offers. Her entire stock of exclusive models—regular $25 values, reduced to $12.95. Dressy frocks in silks, georgettes, velvets, satins, crepe and velvet combinations stunning evening or dinner dresses. Or tailored effects in charmeuse, in finest jerseys, silver flake, tweeds and kasha Sizes to 44. At $8.95 misses models in crepe back satins, crepe de chine, satins, georgettes and jerseys. Dear dresses, Anne—yes anything but dear at $8.95.

You'll Be Delighted

To find all your needs in Fal. footwear so ably filled by Andrews, Temple Place and Washington Streets. No matter what the occasion, And drews carefully selected the newest style mood and offers it to you in models that will complete your new costumes perfectly. And notwithstanding the excellent quality, will ask very, very little of your clothes allowance. $12.50 for the smart little spike-heeled lizard oxford featured this week in black or brown suede trimmed with kid. or patent throughout. A beauty!

"Where Are You Going

My pretty maid?" "To Peggy Perry's, kind sir" she said. For she knows just how to drape and fit my new all-of-gold evening gown for the Varsity Club dance, and all the girls will be green with envy when they see it. Talk about gilding the lily! What lily wouldn't be be gilded by Peggy Perry's clever fingers! Peggy has more fittings that there are hours in the day, and no wonder, when all it costs to get a superlatively lovely gown is $12.00 and the cost of the material.

I'm Proud, Anne,

For Dr. Allan P. Saul, my competent podiatrist-chiropodist, 3rd Floor, 110 Tremont St., is now also recommended by Nancy Howe, of Station WNAC, who will tell you about him every day next week. Do listen in and hear her tell of her road to health and how he stimulates weak feet and rebuilds fallen arches. "Twas there that I had these shoes made for only $5. The comfy arch supports are built in, and if ever a pair of shoes gave satisfaction these have. Dr. Saul's shoes are for every foot and every occasion!

A Few Fortunates

Are born beautiful, but most of us have to acquire it, and the daily regular use of Virosol is the surest and straightest road to facial beauty that I know of. It's so cleansing, so refreshing, and works so quickly, too. Before the evening engagement, a few moments with Virosol works wonders for ironing out tired lines and tightening and refreshing the skin A little Virosol on a bit of cotton leaves my face fresh and radiant for hours. $1.25 for a generous bottle at Plotkin Bros., 364 Boylston St.

Faithfully yours,
Priscilla

Gives Two Strangers a Lift and Loses His Automobile

Charles M. Daley of Elmore street, Roxbury, won't stop any more in the early morning hours to give strangers a lift.

He stopped today in Wayland and lost his automobile, some cash and a watch and chain. The only receipts he received were a black eye and a broken nose.

State troopers found the battered victim trudging homeward along the road and took him to a doctor's office. Now the troopers are searching for the two thugs.

COLLEGE BOY KILLED WHILE HUNTING DEER

Watertown, N. Y., Oct. 31 (I.N.S.).—William Pierce, a junior at Clarkson College, is dead as the result of a bullet wound received while hunting with friends near here.

With J. B. Parris, a freshman at the same school, Pierce had shot and killed a fine buck. They were hiding the carcass when a shot struck Pierce in the shoulder, inflicting a wound from which he bled to death.

Simon Young and George Thurston of Potsdam told Coroner W. H. Schwartz they fired at the head of Pierces' buck when they saw it to the bushes.

DEAD MEXICAN BANDITS DISPLAYED AS WARNING

Mexico City, Oct. 31 (I.N.S.).—The bodies of five members of the Mexican band that attacked a railroad train near Jan. De Berrio, State of Guanajuanto, executed Saturday, were exhibited in the public square at San Luis De La Paz, near the scene of the attack.

Placards placed over the bodies gave warning a like penalty awaited all such attackers.

PROGRESS THE WATCHWORD OF THE WEEK

Progress Week, during which the commercial, industrial, educational and recreational advantages of New England will be proclaimed to the world by radio by direct speech, by the printed word and by graphic display, had its start today with the opening of two floors of special exhibits in the Boston Chamber of Commerce building.

High lights of the week will occur in a series of luncheons tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday in the dining rooms of the Chamber at which speakers of national prominence will discuss subjects of vital concern to the advancement of the six New England States.

Tomorrow is designated as Civic Day. Traffic congestion in the downtown business district will be discussed by Professor Miller McClintock, head of the Mayor's traffic survey committee, at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon. Frederick S. Snyder will preside. Howard Coonley will speak on "What Air Transport Means to Boston."

CUTTER TO SPEAK.

The speakers at the luncheon on Wednesday, Trade and Industry Day, will be Francis H. Sisson of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, whose subject is "The Winds of Business—How They Flow," and Victor M. Cutter of the United Fruit Company, talking on "Why New England Looks Good to Me." Colonel Frank Knox, regional director of the Hearst newspapers in New England, will preside.

Thursday, which is Transportation Day, will have Governor Ralph O. Brewster of Maine discussing "A Merchant Marine Policy," and E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, on "The Importance of Transportation in Modern Business."

R. G. Hawkins, chairman of the Boston Chamber of Commerce Progress Week Committee, states that the purpose of the week is to demonstrate real facts about present day New England.

ONE OF MOST IMPORTANT.

"We want to show everyone that New England, an economic unit centering in Boston, is really one of the richest and most important commercial centers in the world," he said.

"The real Boston is America's fourth biggest city, and it is going ahead with marked speed on a sound and reliable basis."

Among the firms co-operating in the display exhibits at the Chamber of Commerce are Jordan Marsh Company, C. F. Hovey & Company, Ivan Allen Manufacturing Company, Motor Mart and Bowdoin Square Garages, Gilchrist's, R. H. White Company, Leopold Morse, William Filene's Sons Company the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture and various divisions and bureaus of the Chamber of Commerce.

ARTHUR NASH, "GOLDEN RULE" TAILOR, IS DEAD

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 31 (A.P.).—Arthur Nash, 59, founder of the A. Nash Tailoring Company, perhaps best known as the exponent of the "Golden Rule" in business, died of heart disease.

The profits of the company bearing his name are divided annually, one-third going to the stockholders, another third to the workers, and the remainder put back into the business. Mr. Nash was frequently called upon for speaking engagements in other cities.

He was active in civic matters and in the Federation of Churches in America. He leaves a widow, two sons and a daughter.

3 HURT IN STRANGE RESTAURANT BATTLE

Worcester, Oct. 31.—Claiming they did not know "what it was all about," three men were taken to the Worcester City Hospital today suffering from serious knife wounds as a result of a free-for-all fight in a Shrewsbury street restaurant.

They are John Buenol, forty-two, of Washington street; Stuart McLeod, twenty-one, of King street, both of Worcester, and Ernest Bishop, twenty, no address. All three will recover, doctors said.

SUPREME COURT TAKES UP ARLINGTON MILLS APPEAL

Concord, N. H., Oct. 31 (A.P.).—A special session of the State Supreme Court is being held today to hear arguments in the case of the Arlington Mills of Lawrence, Mass., against the town of Salem, involving the value of a reservoir and other property.

The Salem assessors appraised the property for $438,000. The questions before the Supreme Court were raised by exceptions to the report of a referee, who found the property had not been overvalued.

JAMAICA PLAIN BOY, 9, KNOCKED DOWN BY AUTO

Roy Baerley, nine, son of Sidney Baerley of School street, Jamaica Plain, was injured today when knocked down by an automobile operated by an unidentified driver at Schon and Washington streets, near his home. The boy was taken to the Emerson Hospital and treated for lacerations over his left eye and the back of his head. Police are seeking the driver who took the boy to the hospital.

COURT HOLDS PRISONER IN BROOKLINE BREAK

David Hennessey, arrested by Brookline police as he was leaving the apartment of David Singer at No. 29 Egmont street, was arraigned before Judge Parker in Brookline Court today charged with breaking and entering in the daytime. He pleaded not guilty and was held in $5,000 for hearing tomorrow.

PRINCESS ILEANA IS TOO BUSY TO ELOPE

Bucharest, Rumania, Oct. 31 (A.P.).—Princess Ileana, who is still the subject of gossip that she has eloped despite repeated denials, today arrived here with Queen Marie, her mother, on a visit to the Queen's domestic retreat at Balcick on the Black Sea.

The princess has taken over the work of feeding destitute soldiers and civilians in Rumania, which was founded by the American Young Men's Christian Association.

"Do you think anyone who has to feed 800 soldiers daily and attend to a thousand other things has time for elopements?" the princess replied in answer to a question about the gossip.

20 Per Cent. Melon Plan

Washington, Oct. 31 (A.P.).—Permission to pay a 20 per cent. stock dividend was sought from Interstate Commerce Commission today by Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad, subsidiary of New York Central.

LINKS SINCLAIR IN PAYMENT TO FALL

Washington, Oct. 31 (I.N.S.).—The signature of Harry F. Sinclair on an oil contract that produced profits, part of which found their way into the hands of former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall, was shown to the oil conspiracy trial jury today.

The government is contending that the money Fall got was a bribe from Sinclair for securing a lease on the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve.

The contract was between the Continental Trading Company of Canada and the late Colonel A. E. Humphreys of Texas, providing for purchase by the Continental of 25,000,000 barrels of oil at $1.50 barrel.

AS GUARANTOR.

Sinclair's name appeared as a guarantor of the Continental.

The government is contending Sinclair was the moving spirit of the Continental, for the concern was organized only for the Humphreys deal.

Former Senator Charles S. Thomas of Colorado, attorney of Humphreys, identified the contract. He explained that Sinclair was present when it was drafted, and that he had insisted on Sinclair's signature because he had never heard of the Continental Trading Company, and didn't want to sign a $50,000,000 contract with an unknown concern.

SHOWS CONTRACT.

H. L. Phillips, president of the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company, then took the stand and produced a contract under which the concern bought the oil from the Continental at $1.75 per barrel.

This was a profit to the Continental of 25 cents a barrel—$6,000,000 in all. Sinclair had guaranteed the Continental contract, which made possible the taking of this profit from his own company.

200 GIVE LOVING CUP TO SOUTH END LEADER

Congressman John I. Douglass presented ex-Representative John H. Logue of the South End a loving cup on behalf of 200 friends gathered in Old Franklin schoolhouse, South End, in honor of Mr. Logue's 59th birthday.

Among those who spoke were State Treasurer William Youngman, Councilman John I. Fitzgerald and Michael Ward, Arthur W. Sullivan of the Suffolk Probate Court, John B. Cassidy of Roxbury, Representative A. A. Sutherland, Thomas F. Phelan, John F. Hardy and William T. O'Hare of the school committee.

Child Burned to Death Trying to "Help Mama"

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 31 (A.P.).—Four-year-old Mary Lapani is dead today as the result of burns sustained when scalding water from a kettle spilled over the entire right side of her body.

The child was "helping mama get dinner," she told her parents and doctors, when she accidentally pulled the kettle and its boiling contents from the stove.

WILLETT AGAIN LOSER IN COURT

the famed Tichborne case. It covered thirteen months in Norfolk Superior Court at Dedham, during which tenure one of the jurors collapsed and had to be excused permanently, both sides agreeing to finish with 11 jurors.

Two other jurors were married during the trial, as was one of the junior counsel and one of the reporters assigned to the case. Before the trial was completed, a daughter was born to this reporter.

Nine women, related in one way or another with principles identified with the case, died during the trial.

Judge Christopher T. Callahan, trial justice, almost died himself from anemia pectoris. Daniel G. Wing, a defendant, and Judge Frederick L. Chase, his counsel, were almost killed in an automobile accident, and Willett himself, almost at the end of the trial, suffered an illness that nearly proved fatal.

During the trial there were allowed almost 1,000 exhibits and the book of testimony covered more than 18,000 typewritten pages.

The suit was by far the most famous ever brought in a Massachusetts Court and the damages asked by Willett—$15,000,000—were the largest ever asked here in a Civil Court.

BLOOD TRANSFUSIONS FAIL TO SAVE WRITER

New York, Oct. 31 (A.P.).—After a nine-months' illness, during which he was forced to submit to weekly blood transfusions, George Leland Hunter, 69, writer and lecturer on tapestries and decorative subjects, died at his home today.

He was stricken with pneumothamia in January and recently contracted pneumonia. He was born in Bellingham, Mass., May 8, 1867, and was educated at Phillips Exeter Academy and Harvard. Besides his widow, he is survived by two sisters.

MOTHER DIES IN THIRD TRY TO END LIFE

Fitchburg, Oct. 31.—Twice unsuccessful in attempts to end her life by hanging, Mrs. Hilma Matson, 50, of Westminster Hill road, turned to the "gas route" today and accomplished her mission.

According to the police, Mrs. Matson closed all doors and windows in the kitchen of her home, drew a chair up against the gas-stove and turned on all the jets. As she lost consciousness, her body topples from the chair to the floor, arousing her seven-year-old daughter, May. The child called her father, John Matson, who dragged the stricken woman into the open and summoned Dr. Raymond Jones.

RUTH GIVES THANKS TO FRANCE IN RADIO DEBUT

Paris, Oct. 31 (A.P.).—Ruth Elder and Captain George W. Haldeman broadcast to all France today their appreciation of the "magnificent reception" they have been accorded since their arrival in Paris.

"I'll be ready to try again next year, however," Captain Haldeman concluded.

The speeches, which were in English, were broadcast from the Sorbonne Radiological Laboratory.

BOTH PILOTS AT ODDS WITH MRS. GRAYSON

New York, Oct. 31.—Denial of any mutiny on the amphibian airplane "The Dawn," by both Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson and Pilot Wilmer Stutz, and the pilot's declaration he was "through with the project," today featured the return of the big ship to its hangar on Curtiss Field after three unsuccessful attempts to span the Atlantic.

Although Mrs. Grayson denied there was any mutiny at the time of the third futile attempt to fly from Old Orchard, Me., to Capen hagen, she revealed that there is a breach between her and Brice Goodborough, navigator, as well as with Stultz.

She charged that Goldsborough failed to back her up in her disagreement with the pilot, although admitting she was right, and added that Stultz would never start with her again.

"Now that the plane is back here safe, it can remain forever as far as I am concerned for I am through," Stultz said. "There is not a pilot in the country who will question my judgment. They believe I am doing right."

As Mrs. Grayson watched the big plane being trundled into the hanger she declared there will be a statement given out soon.

"All I want to do now is rest," she said.

STATE FLOWER GIVES COWS STOMACH ACHE

Hartford, Ct., Oct. 31 (A.P.).—Laurel may be the State flower of Connecticut but that does not prevent it from giving sheep and cattle "awful stomach aches," according to a report made to the commissioner of domestic animals by the state highway commissioner.

The road head asked the special head for his opinion on the claim of a Norwich farmer, who was asking compensation for the death of a cow which had nibbled wild cherry bark from brushwood left beside a road.

"Wild cherry may be a cure for rheumatism and mountain laurel city commissioner, in charge of pe of them do cattle any good," was the answer.

MANY BRIDES ARE RETURNING TO SCREEN

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 31.—"The City of Sin" with John Miljan and Merna Loy. Read that and learn that John Miljan, who became a bridegroom on Thursday night when he married Victoire Hale, becomes a leading man. In the past Mr. Miljan was one of our best home-wreckers, a villain de luxe you might say.

Now that he is married—presto, change, he becomes a leading man, with all the screen virtues of such an estimable gentleman.

"The City of Sin," laid in China, is announced by Warner Brothers as a dramatic story of the Orient. We've seen China in every conceivable shape and form in the movies, but never with the exotic Merna Loy and the bridegroom John Miljan.

Archie Mayo will direct. That's all for now—we'll tell you more about it when the picture is completed.

ALL the newlyweds are getting to work. Pauline Starke, whose principal interest in life these last few weeks has been in furnishing an apartment for her bridegroom, Jack White, will play the featured role in "Streets of Shanghai." If you don't believe the movies run in cycles list to that title, another drama of China.

John Stahl, who lately became a partner in the Tiffany-Stahl productions, engaged Miss Starke for the part. They both worked together many times on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot.

The cast all assembled and ready for Louis Gasnier, the director, to say "camera" includes Kenneth Harlan, Margaret Livingston, Eddie Gribbons, Jason Robard and Mathilde Comont.

STILL another bride is returning to pictures. Helene Costello, who married Jack Regan a few weeks ago, will play the leading lady in Monte Blue's next picture, "Across the Atlantic," which Howard Brotherton will direct.

Helene, who is just as pretty as Dolores, although an entirely different type, has never had her sister's good luck in the films. This may be the turning point. You never know when a picture is going to clock, and Monte Blue's operas have a better chance than most films.

IF Marion Davies has good luck. "The Patsy" will be finished this week. From the way she has been working night and day, I believe the picture will be completed not later than Friday. The moment the final scene is taken, she will leave for New York for a few weeks' holiday.

A holiday in New York to Marion is a session at the plays, a visit at the shops and a reunion with old friends. Although she was born and brought up in New York, she calls Hollywood home. That's the way most of us New Yorkers do, once we get acclimated here.

THE movies are a great thing for the heroes who have stepped down from their pedestals to make room for their successors. The celluloid drama gives them an opportunity to relieve their past glories. Tod Sloan is going to do that very thing in "Hot Heels" when he plays a scene at the Tanforan race track in San Francisco.

Just twenty-six years ago "Tod" Sloan, who was then considered the best jockey in this country, rode a horse called Joe Fry to victory, at this very track. Mr. Sloan had permanently made up his mind not to return to the movies. He made one picture and, between friends, wasn't entirely sold on the idea. But when the old Tanforan race track loomed into sight, he just couldn't refuse.

This is the Universal picture in which Glenn Tryon will be starred with Patsy Ruth Miller as his leading lady and William J. Craft directing.

A LITTLE thing like a dislocated vertebrae, a misplaced rib and a hospital sentence isn't worrying W. C. Fields. He expects to emerge triumphant in the next few days to begin work on "Quick Lunch," his next comedy with Chester Conklin.

His doctor insists that he be perfectly well because he and Conklin play a couple of waiters in an all-night restaurant and it takes a strong man to balance a tray, as well as dodge falling dishes.

Production is, therefore, set for December 12, when Mr. Fields expects to be in his former good health.

BELIEVE SLAIN YOUTH ROBBED OF BIG SUM

York, Pa., Oct. 31 (A.P.).—Robbery, police said today, was the motive for the slaying of J. C. Walsh, twenty-four, said to be the son of a Chicago business man. His body was found slumped against a garage in the foreign quarter here. His death resulted from a blow on the head. He was reported to have had a large sum of money when he left a dance hall, but only $1 was found in his pocket.

Mrs. Marion Glones told Coroner L. U. Zech that she had seen three men attack Wash and, after hitting him with a brick, throw his body against the garage. The coroner expressed the opinion that this was the correct version.

James Williams, twenty-eight, colored, who was arrested and held on an open charge, told the authorities that he struck Walsh with his fist when Williams responded to cries of help from two women.

Local authorities said that Walsh was the son of William Walsh, sales manager of the Chicago plant of the American Chain Company, and that he had been employed at the local plant to learn the business. They also said they had learned the young man was married and that his wife lived in Chicago.

Companions said he had served in the navy and had played professional football in Chicago.

MARTHA LEE GIVES RULE FOR DEVIL CAKE

A Delicious Product

ARE you one of those housewives who quite often says, "Well I was never born a cake maker. It's a gift of the Gods."

And in patient resignation do you sit by and watch your family struggling with cake so dry that it seems in imminent danger of flying out of their ears when they swallow?

It certainly is maddening to know that your next door neighbor takes the same materials, the same recipe and with a simple turn of the wrist turns out a moist, tender, delicious cake while yours insists on being as coarse as a sponge and as unbending as a Puritan conscience.

However, if you will try the recipe I have for you today you can, I am sure, change the burden of your song to "Better cakes than mine makes no woman."

Frankly I was never born a cake maker, but with this recipe success is mine and peans of praise come from my pleased family. The recipe was contributed by Mrs. Mary A. Small, of No. 69 Gainsboro street, Back Bay. I am very sure that it already has a regular place on the table of thousands of members of the Martha Lee Women's Club. Saying which she produced the recipe.

DEVIL CAKE.—Into a small saucepan put yolk of 1 egg, ½ cup milk and 2 squares chocolate, shaved. Cook until thick as cream, stirring all the time. Put a piece of butter as large as an egg in as you remove from fire and let melt. Then pour into the following mixture: 1 cup sugar, ½ cup milk, 1½ cups flour, 1 tsp. soda. Stir beaten white of 1 egg in last. Bake in a shallow pan about 25 minutes.

MOCHA FROSTING—1 cup confectioner's sugar, 2 tsp. dry cocoa, 1 tbsp. butter, 2 tbsp. hot coffee, vanilla. Spread between layers and on top cake after it has cooled.

COOK UNTIL THICK AS CREAM—1 EGG 1 CUP MILK AND 2 SQUARES CHOCOLATE SHAVED
ADD BUTTER SUGAR MILK FLOUR AND SODA
WASHBURN'S GOLD MEDAL Kitchen-tested FLOUR
ADD BEATEN EGG WHITES AND BAKE IN A SHALLOW PAN ~ 25 MINUTES
MAKE FROSTING WITH CONFECTIONER'S SUGAR COCOA BUTTER HOT COFFEE AND VANILLA SPREAD FROSTING BETWEEN LAYERS AND ON TOP OF CAKE

Recipe for a Cake

THIS is a master recipe for butter cake: 2 cups sifted cake flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ cup butter or other shortening, 1 cup sifted sugar, ¾ cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 3 egg whites, beaten light.

Prepare pan. Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, and sift together three times. Cream shortening thoroughly, then add sugar gradually and c am together until light and fluffy. Add sifted flour and baking powder to creamed mixture, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time.

Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla, fold in egg whites. Bake in loaf or layers in moderate oven. (Loaf: One hour, 350 degrees F. Layer: 20-25 minutes, 375 degrees F.)

3 Favorites Are Back

THEY do come back! This time it is three old American favorites—corned beef and cabbage, New England boiled dinner and Irish stew—that have staged the come back.

Having withstood repeated invasions of fancy foreign cookery these three today are among the most popular dishes served on railway dining cars, according to Otto Paul Reiss, noted supervising chef of the Southern Pacific's commissary service.

Once more American tastes stand justified, for Reiss believes this food unsurpassed in any land for taste, wholesomeness and nourishment values.

Reiss this week sails for Europe where he will investigate restaurant and dining car services of European and British railroads, searching for ideas and recipes adaptable for use on American roads.

"Our dining car standards are unsurpassed," he said. "But Europe has developed many new ideas since the war, some of which may be acceptable to American travelers. European chefs produce fine recipes the best of which are used on our trains. None of these, however, is so lastingly popular as the old-fashioned American favorites."

Crab Meat Monaco Is Served on Toast

Crab Meat Monaco is according to this recipe: Remove seeds from green peppers—parboil in water, with pinch of soda. Cut in strips and then squares. Cut a canned pimento in the same way. Add these to two cups white sauce, 1 small can crab meat, ½ cup olives sliced and 1 egg beaten. Serve on toast or crackers.

Apples and Grapes Are Leading Fruits

APPLES and grapes are the leading fruits this week.

McIntosh apples, and they are so delicious, are selling from 2 to 5 pounds for a quarter. For baking, big Wolf River apples are delicious.

A 12-quart basket of Concord grapes is $1.00 to $1.25, with wild grapes at 10c a lb.—and now is the time to make the various grape products—grape juice, butter, spiced grapes and jelly.

Grapefruit from Porto Rico and Florida are in but will be better later in the season. Quince is in season, and is excellent for jellies and preserves. The season for native peaches is over.

Cauliflower is the leading light in the vegetable stalls, and is even cheaper than last week. The heads are solid, clean and of good size. The sweet potato crop this year is large and retail prices are low—often 3 to 10 lbs. for 25c. Winter squash and cabbage are also economical buys.

Lamb continues to be about the best buy at the meat counter—particularly lamb forequarters boned and rolled for roasting.

And here's good news—so far the turkey prospects for the holiday season are reported excellent for good birds and reasonable prices.

Cranberry a Tonic

CRANBERRIES are really more than delicious—they are one of nature's most helpful gifts. I really always think of them as the tonic fruit, and a first aid to the stimulation of other foods. Here is a recipe for cranberry, raisin and honey jam, delicious on breakfast toast: 4 cups cranberries, 1 cup seeded raisins, 1 cup honey, few grains salt.

Chop cranberries and raisins together, saving all the juice. Cook with honey and salt over very slow fire until it thickens, and pour into sterilized glasses. Stir often; it must not separate.

Delicious Way for Preparing Macaroni

For macaroni a la Francaise, boil macaroni in salted water until tender. Drain and add ½ pint stewed tomatoes, strained and hot, salt to taste. Add a little paprika. To this add ½ cup chopped olives, mixed with 3 tablespoons butter. Mix thoroughly and serve hot.

Hints About Pie Crust

IN the first place, pie crust should have as little handling as possible, because just the warmth of the hands is bad for it. The ingredients should all be cold. The shortening you take from the refrigerator anyway, but be very sure that the water you use is cold.

Next mix the shortening and the flour and salt thoroughly, but quickly. The resulting mixture should be crumbly. Then add the water, a little at a time, just enough to make the dough manageable. Then you'll have to learn by experience. Toss the dough on a slightly floured board and roll out to the desired size.

Lay it in the pie tin, and again you must use care. There will be tiny bubbles of air between the crust and tin, and these must all be worked out, or you'll have "blisters" when th pie is baked.

In baking, have the oven moderately hot. Don't let the pie bake too fast or too slowly. Again, you must learn by experience. Of course, if you are fortunate enough to have an oven regulator, your problem is simplified.

Now for quantities. My staple recipe for pie crust is 1 cup of flour, ½ tsp. salt, ⅓ cup of shortening and ¼ cup of ice water. Since flour varies from time to time, you'll have to make allowance in the ice water, which is the only variable quantity. This makes one big crust. If you are making a two-crust pie you'll double the quantities, of course.

When your pie is made, if there is crust left, roll it thin and cut in suitable size to fit over the bottoms of muffin tins. Bake with the regular pie, and these extra crusts will make delicious tarts another day.

The filling of the pie can be anything you or the family like. Of course, apple pie is the standby, and you can vary that as I have suggested more than once, by filling in the sliced apples, adding sugar and cinnamon, as you normally would, and then laying thin layers of cheese over the apples before you put on the top crust.

Learn the capacity of each pie tin, and don't fill fruit pies full enough so that juice will escape and flood the bottom of the oven—not to mention the smoke that permeates the house.

Here's Menu for Today

HERE is a menu for today:

Pork Steaks
Glazed Sweet Potatoes
Cauliflower
Lettuce and Cheese Salad
Apple Pie.

A satisfactory cut for pork steaks is sliced fresh ham, broiled quickly at first and then allowed to cook more slowly. Or you can get tender and delicious pork tenderloins.

For the glazed potatoes, cook pared sweet potatoes in boiling salted water 10 minutes. Drain. Cut in halves lengthwise, and put in buttered pan. Make a syrup by boiling together for 3 minutes one-half cup sugar and four tablespoons water. Add one tablespoon butter. Brush the potatoes with this syrup and bake them for 15 minutes, basting twice with the remaining syrup.

A Filling and Icing That Is Delicious

FILLING AND ICING—¼ lb figs, ½ lb. raisins, ½ lb. pecans or English walnuts, 2 cups sugar, ¾ cup water, 2 egg whites, beaten stiff, 1 tsp. vanilla.

Grind fruits and nuts together. Dates and candied or Maraschino cherries may be used. Cook sugar and water to soft ball stage, 238 deg. F. Four syrup slowly on egg whites. Beat until mixture will stand alone. Add vanilla.

Stir fruits and nuts into two-thirds of icing. Spread between layers and on top of cake. Cover entire cake with remaining plain icing.

Drop Cooky Recipe

FOR Drop Cookies take: One cup butter, three eggs, one and a half tablespoons hot water, one-half teaspoon salt, one cup chopped nut meats, one-half cup chopped raisins, one and a half cups sugar, one teaspoon soda, three and a quarter cups flour (scant), one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half cup currants, one teaspoon vanilla.

Cream butter. Add sugar gradually, then eggs well beaten, then soda dissolved in hot water. Add one-half of the flour mixed and sifted with the salt, and cinnamon. Then add nut meats, raisins, vanilla, currants and the rest of the flour. Drop from spoon in small cakes

From the Tower

THERE certainly seems to be plenty of apples on the retail counters and at reasonable prices and in all sizes to bob for Hallowe'en. And the delicious native Bosc pears at 30c to 50c a dozen. On the vegetable counters Hubbard squash, squash, sprouts, onions, peppers and turnips are good buys. A few beans are offered and cucumbers are at least 20c each. Cauliflower is plentiful but not quite so good as a couple of weeks ago. A few bunches of California asparagus are in the market—yum, yum. Heavy beef is high. But chuck roasts without the bone are moderately priced at 30c to 33c a pound. Lamb prices stay low. Fresh mackerel is 25c to 30c today, and probably about the last of the fresh mackerel season. Scallops, especially the scallops, are high and haddock is higher than in past weeks.

Remember that this week is apple week. The apple is rightfully called a king of fruits and is valuable for its mineral and vitamin contents. For apples are particularly good for apple. Besides, apple pie and apple sauce, there are many recipes for cooking apples, Brown Betty Apple Cake, Apple Custard, Apple Dumplings, Apple Pudding, etc., that I'll be glad to send you, if you'll drop me a line. Remember that "an apple a day keeps the doctor away."

COOKING SCHOOL ECHOES

DOUGHNUTS
your sons will fondly remember

I DON'T know why almost every man recalls his mother's cooking by the doughnuts she used to make—but he does.

Doughnuts seem to be one sure way to the heart of every boy from six to sixty.

Here are three of my favorite recipes for doughnuts about which your sons will tell their sons with fond recollection. Deep fried in Crisco they are rich, yet digestible—never a bit greasy. And, remember, at the proper frying temperature Crisco fries without smoke or unpleasant odor—without waste, too; for you can use the same Crisco for frying over and over again.

Doughnuts

¾ cup sugar
1½ tablespoons Crisco
1 egg
¾ cup milk
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon clove
½ teaspoon mace
½ teaspoon salt

Cream sugar and Crisco together. Add well beaten egg and milk and mix well. Mix and sift flour, baking powder, cinnamon, clove, mace and salt. Add to the first mixture and mix thoroughly. Turn out on slightly floured board and roll to ⅓ inch thickness. Cut with a doughnut cutter and fry in deep hot Crisco (340 to 375 degrees F.) until a delicate brown. Drain on unglazed paper. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar before serving.

This recipe makes 24 doughnuts.

Raised Doughnuts

¾ cup sugar
3 tablespoons Crisco
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup scalded milk
1 yeast cake
2 tablespoons lukewarm water
5 cups flour
2 eggs
1 teaspoon nutmeg

Add sugar, Crisco and salt to the scalded milk. When lukewarm add the yeast cake mixed with warm water. Add enough flour to make a sponge (about 2 cups). Set in a warm place to rise. When light add well beaten eggs, nutmeg and enough flour to make a soft dough. Cover and let rise until double in bulk. Knead until free from large air bubbles.

Roll out on a slightly floured board to ½ inch thickness. Cut with a doughnut cutter, cover and set in a warm place to rise again until double in bulk. Put them top side down in the deep hot Crisco (340 to 375 degrees F.). Fry on one side, turn and fry on the other side. When a delicate brown remove from fat and drain on unglazed paper. Just before serving sprinkle with confectioners' sugar.

This recipe makes 30 doughnuts.

Jelly Doughnuts

Follow recipe for Raised Doughnuts. After the second rising, roll out on a slightly floured board to ½ inch thickness. Cut with a cooky cutter. Put one teaspoon currant jelly in the center of one round, moisten edges with water and place another round on top. Press edges lightly together. Cover and set in a warm place to rise until double in bulk. Fry in the same way as Raised Doughnuts.

This recipe makes 24 doughnuts.

The bakermen who went to sea

TWENTY years ago a group of Sunshine master bakers went abroad—doughty discoverers they were. They brought back a shipment of baking wisdom and English baking machinery to bake the tempting British "hard sweets" fresh in the Sunshine bakeries.

Today these delicious "hard sweets" lie on your grocer's shelves at the popular Sunshine prices, under such names as Sunshine Hydrox, Sunshine Sylvers Creams, etc.

You can thank the Sunshine Bakers for this. Ask for them by name. That's thanks enough, thank you.

RECIPES FOR TONIGHT'S CELEBRATION

A cup of India Tea

is the most refreshing and stimulating drink in the world. The black, fermented tea, as used in England, makes the finest beverage. The fermentation gives it the kick.

Tea is a natural stimulant. It restores your flagging energy. It braces up your nerves. In fact, it tones up the whole body as no other drink can do.

But you can only appreciate the value of tea fully when it is made in the right way. Follow these instructions carefully, and you'll realise how delicious tea can be.

Use India Tea or a blend containing India Tea, and make it in the correct way. Use an earthenware teapot, previously warmed. Put into it one teaspoonful of India Tea for each person. Be sure the water is poured into the teapot the moment it boils. Allow to stand for 5 minutes to infuse. Put a little milk or cream into each cup before serving the tea. It greatly improves the flavour. Then add sugar to taste. India Tea also makes the best Iced Tea.

Most of the packet tea people in America sell brands containing India Tea. Look at every packet you buy and see that it states that the packet contains India Tea or a blend containing India Tea. Most Tea Bags also contain India Tea.

Halloween Recipes

ALMOST anyone can entertain at a moment's notice, for Halloween, for success really depends, not on money, but on gay informality quickly transporting your guests into a world of make-believe. It's not too late even now to telephone to four or five congenial couples and plan a pleasant evening. Your menu might consist of:

Boil and Bubble Bouillon
Be-Witching Salad Pixie Pies
Toasted Cheese Crackers
Black Magic Sandwiches
Harvest Cup Toasted Nuts

BE-WITCHING SALAD—2 packages prepared lemon gelatine; 2 cups boiling water; 3 tablespoons orange syrup; 1 bottle pale dry ginger ale; 1 cup finely diced celery; 1 cup diced white chicken meat; 1 cup cooked, blanched nut meats, 1 finely shredded sweet red pepper; whipped cream mayonnaise; 1 cup shredded, seeded malaga grapes, lettuce, nuts for garnishing.

Add the boiling water to the gelatine and stir until dissolved. Add the orange; syrup; cool; stir in the pale dry ginger ale. Then beginning to congeal add celery, grapes, chicken, nut meats and pepper and transfer to a mould rubbed with salad oil. Chill until firm, at least six hours, unmould and garnish with whipped cream mayonnaise, lettuce and extra nut meats.

BLACK MAGIC SANDWICHES —½ pound sweet prunes, ½ cup orange syrup, 1 cream cheese, 3 tablespoons butter, cut entire wheat bread.

Soak the prunes over night in water to cover. Steam tender and chill. Chop fine and add the orange. Stir the cream cheese and butter together till soft and beat in the prune mixture. Use as a sandwich filling with thin slices of dark entire wheat bread.

PIXIE PIES—1 cup sugar, 1½ cups boiling water, ½ cup orange syrup, 5 tablespoons cornstarch, 1½ teaspoons butter, 3 egg yolks, 1¾ tablespoons lemon juice, pastry.

Mix the cornstarch and sugar and add boiling water and orange syrup, stirring constantly. Boil three minutes, then add the butter and lemon juice. Stir into the egg yolks, beaten light. Line little flat pans with flaky pastry; almost fill them with the "Pixie" mixture and bake until firm in a hot oven, 375 degrees F.

When nearly done they may be heaped with a meringue made from the egg whites beaten stiff with three tablespoons sugar, then replaced in the oven for seven minutes to brown, or they may be served with a garnish of whipped cream.

HARVEST CUP—1 quart cider, 1 bottle orange syrup, 2 bottles pale dry ginger ale, 1 cup seeded and halved Tokay grapes, crushed ice.

Combine the orange, syrup, cider and ice, add the grapes and serve with the orange syrup and pale dry ginger ale. Place an opener on the tray. Mix when ready to serve in order to retain the sparkle.

The Latest in Soups

A SATISFYING way to begin an Eighteenth Amendment dinner is provided in the chilled fruit soup—you might call them prohibition soups. Straight from France comes this new vogue, and we return the compliment by adding some very new and delightful variations to their original soups.

As the main course to be a glistening brown pork roast with a coterie of golden brown potatoes and a rich gravy? The proper introduction, a la France, is a chilled spiced apple soup. If the dinner is planned around a roast leg of lamb, what more ideal way to begin it than with an iced mint fruit soup?

ICED MINT FRUIT SOUP—Half No. 2 can crushed pineapple, 2 cups water, half glass mint jelly, 1 teaspoon arrowroot, fresh mint.

Smooth arrowroot to a paste with a little cold water, then add to the pineapple juice together with the cold water and jelly. Cook until slightly thickened, stirring to prevent lumping. Serve very cold, garnished with a sprig of fresh mint. This recipe served six persons.

Smooth together the cornstarch and cold water and add to peach juice, lemon juice and sugar. Cook until slightly thickened. Chill. Just before serving, combine with the iced ginger ale and serve at once. This recipe will serve 8 persons.

SPARKLING GINGER BOUILLON—Juice from 1 quart can peaches, juice of half lemon, 1 tea spoon sugar, 1 teaspoon cornstarch 1 tablespoon cold water, 1 pint ginger ale.

ICED CHERRY SOUP—Juice from quart can sour pitted cherries, 1 cup water, 3 teaspoons cornstarch, 5 tablespoons cold water, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, one-third cup cherries, 2 tablespoons cold water.

Mix cornstarch with the two tablespoons cold water, add to cherry juice, water, sugar and lemon juice. Cook until thickened, stirring to prevent lumping. Chill. Serve very cold, with a few cherries garnishing each cup. This recipe will serve 6 persons.

Just How to Make Martha's Nut Bread

Martha's nut bread is made thusly: Two cups graham flour, 1 cup white flour, pinch of salt, 1½ cup sugar, ½ cup molasses, 1 teaspoon soda, scant cup of English walnuts, 1½ cups milk. The mixture should be as stiff as soft bread. Bake in moderate oven one hour.

Very Handy Appliance

ONE of the most treasured possessions in the Martha Lee Kitchen is our pastry blender.

Never will you see Martha or Minna up to their elbows in flour, rubbing in the shortening. We blend it in, with a clever little handy helper that's shaped something like a flatiron, except that instead of a heavy ironing surface, the bottom is of meshed wire—something like fine chicken wire.

A few "turns of the wrist" with this magic mixer, and presto—the shortening is perfectly blended in our pastry, with a minimum of time and effort—and so evenly blended that the pie crust is sure to be flaky and tender. Here's the recipe we use:

Crust for Double Crust Pie—Sift together 1½ cups pastry flour, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon baking powder. Blend in one-third cup lard or preferred shortening, with the blended, until mixture is like coarse meal. With a fork mix in slowly five tablespoons cold water. Roll out with as little flour as possible, handling as little as possible. When pie is ready for oven, hold under cold water faucet for a minute to thoroughly wet crust. Oven should be hot.

To Carve a Rib Roast

IF unrolled, the rib roast is placed with the ribs protruding to the left of the carver He steadies the roast by grasping the upper rib in his fingers, and cuts very thin slices transversely across the grain. With the point of the knife he removes the meat from the rib bone, one rib at a time

If rolled, it is sliced in the same manner, except that the roast is steadied by inserting the fork held in the left hand securely into the outer or fatty layers at a point just below the slice next to be taken.

The skewers or cords used in rolling the meat must be removed one by one as they are encountered, allowing them to fall, with the aid of the fork, on the side of the platter.

After slicing the meat needed, serve the outer slices from the roast to those who prefer their meat well done and the inner cuttings to those who prefer it rare.

Pineapple in Cake

HERE'S how to make pineapple wheel cake: Take ¼ cup brown sugar, 1 cup chopped walnut meats, butter size of an egg, 1 can pineapple, cherries.

Melt butter in large black frying pan and lay slices of pineapple, one in center and as many around as possible to form ring. Place a cherry in hole of each slice of pineapple and cover with sugar and the walnuts. Then pour over, cake batter made as follows: 3 egg yolks, 1 cup flour, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ¼ cup pineapple juice 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 pinch of salt and the whites of eggs beaten stiff.

Bake in moderate oven.

Making Pie Crust by Hot-Water Method

Hot water pie crust calls for ½ cup boiling water and 1 cup shortening. Beat with a fork until smooth. Sift in 3 cups flour, ½ tsp. salt and ½ tsp. baking powder. Stir gradually, into the shortening. Makes 2 medium sized pies. (2 crusts.)

Recipe for Making of Batch of Brownies

Here is a recipe for Brownies: Take ½ cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 2 squares chocolate, 2 eggs, ½ cup nut meats, ¼ tsp. salt, ½ cup flour, 1 tsp. vanilla.

Cream butter; add remaining ingredients. Spread on buttered sheets. Bake ten or fifteen minutes. Cut immediately.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Useless Club Members to Give Dance on Eve of the Harvard-Yale Game; Select List of Guests Bidden to Smart Affair

USELESS CLUB MEMBERS INTEND DOING THEIR VERY UTMOST TO ADD to the general gaiety and hilarity of the "night before" the big game. Therefore, they have set the date of Autumn ball for the evening immediately preceding the annual meeting of the Crimson and the Blue. They and their friends plan to dine with great leisureliness through the early evening hours, and dance with energy way through into the morning hours. All this at Hotel Brunswick. Invitations go out in the mid-week for this very special occasion. And this year Useless Club's Autumn celebration goes on under George H. Whitney's efficient direction.

A VERY SPECIAL SMALL COMPANY OF GUESTS IS BIDDEN TO THE DINNER, and a very special company, somewhat larger, comes in for the dancing. Being themselves cosmopolitan young men, Useless Club members compile an invitation list of smart and distinctive and cosmopolitan young women guests for their parties. young women who adorn the social scenes of New York, Newport and Philadelphia come to town for the occasion. And some of Bostons' very smart girls and perhaps a debutante or so will find the coveted card of invitation in the morning's mail.

SINCE THE USELESS CLUB IS A BACHELORS' AGGREGATION, NATURALLY the little god with his darts decimates the membership now and again. But even those young men blessed as benedicts retain the warmest regard for their erstwhile club status, and a great attachment for Useless Club celebrations. Bachelor members and benedict past members come out as a man.

THE NORFOLK HUNT CLUB CONTEMPLATES A MERRY MONTH, EVEN though the calendar marks November as of "sere and yellow leaf." Festivity after festivity, hunts, teas, dinners, luncheons, dances and such, commence tomorrow and continue right through the final day. Specially luminous is the general brilliance, there is Saturday, November 12. After the hunt from North Easton the members take tea and dinner with Mr. and Mrs. John S. Ames at "Langwater" and dance with Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Frothingham at "Wayside." Thursday, the 17th, Mr. and Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall invite "the field" to tea at "Lone Oak Farm" after the run. Saturday, the 26th, a jollification at the kennels is a hunt dinner in honor of Walter Channing and Frederick L. Dabney. On Wednesday next there is a day devoted to sport, hunt in the morning, luncheon at Meadowbrook Farm Club at noon and "hound trails" all afternoon. Saturday, the 5th, is "farmers' day" with the hunt hosts to the landowners over whose farms it hunts during the season.

UNDER THE IMPETUS MRS. G. RICHMOND FEARING AND MISS RUTH THAYER give the enormous drive they are engineering, it promises to sail successfully into the desired haven of sound financial returns. The starting gong sounds on November 7, signal for various teams to be off. And Miss Thayer, with an eye to windward, already has her crews lined up. Captains and mates, so to speak, have been recruited from Smart Set ranks, and the crews bring to their efforts for the free hospital the same impressive background. Society is ever ardent in its beneficences. Miss Marjory Fuller is a captain, and Miss Lorraine Liggett is a mate, in one of the crews. Miss Elizabeth Moulton and Miss Edith Wolcott, who came out last year, and Miss Elizabeth Lyman and Miss Virginia Parker, buds of two of more seasons ago, are enrolled.

MRS. RICHARD DEBLOIS BOARDMAN, SPOUSE OF THE FAMOUS YACHTSMAN, "Dicky" Boardman, and Mrs. John Codman, a very recent bride, are lending their good offices to the cause. The air is full of plans for this and that pet charity. A "drive" for one thing or another seems to born each minute, and they all set themselves to raise magnificent sums. The Free Hospital financial desires cannot be satisfied with less than a round million and, apparently, the sum is not without reason. The hospital workers having a winning way with them and possessing the open sesame to purses both deep and heavy, financial results will be golden.

NEWPORT LAND AND ADMIRES MRS. FREDERIC CAMERON CHURCH, JR., and now delights in her acceptance of the chairmanship for the Red Cross drive. The former Miss Vanderbilt's place in the hearts of the townspeople is a warm one, and the prestige of her name and the head of the roll call is even now decidedly apparent, although actual activities do not get underway until November 11.

MARJORIE FULLER
Member of last year's bud set is helping in the drive to raise funds for the Free Hospital for Women.

Mrs. Church is keeping Dudley Place, all brave in its colonial yellow coat of paint and its bright blue shutters and chimneys open for weekends for herself and Mr. Church, and the stables open continuously, for there are stabled the horses she so adores and which occupy so much of her time and attention.

1,461 PARKERS IN ONE COURT IN A MONTH

Announcing that Central Court handled 1,461 cases of alleged parking violations during October, Deputy Police Superintendent Thomas F. Goode, in charge of traffic, declared today his two traffic divisions will continue driving against illegal parkers "with no let-up."

"Parking," he said, "is a large contributing factor in creating unsafe and hazardous zones. There will be no let-up on the work of disciplining illegal parkers, and we intend to do everything possible with the limited force of officers that we have to create the greatest safety for the greatest number of the public."

Of the 1,461 cases handled in court in October, including today, Deputy Goode said 1,203 carried fines of $5 each, 20 fines of $10, two fines of $15, one fine of $3, 210 were filed, 22 defendants were found not guilty and three cases are still pending.

Killed Begging for Cigarette With $3 in His Pocket

Chicago, Oct. 31 (A.P.).—If the stranger had bought his own cigarettes with one of the three $1 bills found in his pocket instead of begging Charles Bowen for one, he probably would be alive today.

The man, unidentified, stopped Bowen and asked him for a cigarette. Bowen replied that he had none.

"Oh, yes you have," said the stranger, snatching from Bowen's lips a cigarette.

They fought. The man was knocked to the sidewalk and his skull fractured. He died shortly afterward.

Besides the $3, his pockets contained several women's rings and a flashlight.

TEST FIRST OF 60 FIGHTING PLANES

Mitchel Field, N. Y., Oct. 31 (A.P.).—The first of a fleet of 60 planes, equipped for bombing and carrying six machine guns for attacking troops on the ground, was given a test flight today.

The 60 planes are to be turned over to the attack division of the Army Air Corps at Kelly Field, Tex.

Lieutenant Edmond P. Gaines, who made the test, said the six machine guns could spray ground troops with bullets while the plane was traveling at 150 miles per hour.

The plane, which is powered with a 570-horse-power motor, is designed to carry six small bombs as well as 5,000 round of machine gun ammunition. Two of the machine guns are concealed in each side of the lower wing and operated from the pilot's control "stick" by electricity.

garden. Then he returned to San Francisco, with the fire still smouldering, bringing his cash back with him, put out a bank of Italy sign on his brother's house and began lending money to clients apparently ruined by the fire. He knew that a mere fire cannot destroy the responsibility of a real man.

The Times comparing Giannini in finance with the great Venetian, Marco Polo in exploration, says Eastern financiers returning from California tell with amazement of Giannini's achievements, his purchase of more than one hundred and sixty banks in California, of other banks in New York city and of gigantic investments, totalling hundreds of millions in Standard Oil, National City Bank, New York Central, Pennsylvania Railroad, and especially United States government bonds.

The Times seems surprised that all this should be done by "the son of an Italian immigrant, born in California's Santa Clara Valley."

The Times might remember that our first immigrant, Columbus, was also Italian, and it might help to fight the foolish immigration law that now keeps out such men as Giannini's father.

Two millions more good Italian workers in California and two other millions in Florida would add billions to the wealth of those States.

The Vancouver Sun tells you that one hundred ships are chartered to carry 20,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat from Vancouver to Britain and the continent in the next three months. All these ships make many cruisers necessary for Britain. We, too, should build fast cruisers, for we may some day wake up, and have a commercial navy.

Meanwhile our Panama Canal—through which all the 100 ships of grain will pass—is offered to our Canadian and British brothers with no extra charge for the fact that our money built it. They pay just what our own few ships pay. Not every nation would do that.

KILLING FROST ALL OVER N. E.

Despite the week-end mercury slump, which registered 20 above in northern Maine and chilled Boston to a temperature well under 40 above, the local weather bureau sees no signs of an early Winter.

All through New England last night frost delivered the killing blow to whatever vegetation lingered through the October Indian Summer, while impending rains with the approaching rise in temperature is expected to denude nature of her autumnal foliage.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: Partly cloudy tonight and Tuesday; warmer tonight; moderate southerly winds.

Springfield, Oct. 31 (A.P.)—A preliminary touch of Winter, that took the mercury to 22 degrees in numerous places in this vicinity, was reported today. Ice of considerable thickness formed on small bodies of water.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

A HOME PAPER FOR EVERY AMERICAN HOME

BOSTON, MONDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1927

SECOND SECTION

A Great Love Serial by an Expert on Affairs of the Heart

CHAPTER I.

IT was a nasty place to work in, Ann thought

The door of the factory office, banged open, flapped like wings. Foremen of departments came and went, arguing or frowning. Droves of salesmen arrived and departed, chewing cigars. Typewriters clattered and the insistent ringing of the telephone m[illegible]led with their sound.

And down the corridors, faintly like the sound of an army of insects, came the drone of the big machines turning with relentless monotony

"But you get four dollars a week more here, and I know I can get you the job," Ann had said to her sister

Georgie's tiny mouth had curved mutinously. "I don't care. I just won't work in a factory—that's all there is to it. I won't go around telling people I work in a factory—you may if you want to."

But Georgie, I don't either. But we just have to—every dollar is so necessary."

"Oh, now you're going to preach Georgette had exclaimed. "That puts me out! Don't take things so seriously—it gives me the blues, Ann."

Georgette had run off, dismissing everything from her mind, and Ann had sighed and smiled at the same time

Did she preach—really preach? Perhaps, but then she had grown accustomed to feeling herself the responsible head, that perhaps she was too solemn. Now that she and Georgie were alone in the world, sharing a room at Mrs. O'Leary's boarding-house in Columbia road, near Edward Everett square, living along from one day to the next someone had to be sensible and sensible!

And to be solemn at twenty-three, to treat Georgie as if she were a baby because she was flattered that she did wrong. In future she'd be quite different. Georgie was old enough to look out for herself, and there was no need of worrying after all.

Having reached this conclusion, Ann continued to go on just as she always had, worrying about Georgie, living her way, taking on her own shoulders the innumerable little problems with which life seemed eternally flood.

Now Georgie was working in the Milk street insurance office, rolling a sheet of paper lazily into her machine, looking up under her lashes with a glance at once impertinent and strategely lovable at the people who came into the office. And Ann worked in the rear of machinery, in South Boston.

But thinking of Georgie now, as the noon hour approached, Ann smiled. She was proud of Georgie, of her charming, natural ways, of the ease with which she attracted men, the quickness and daring of her impulses.

Perhaps too swift, too daring . . . Ann closed her eyes. Georgie was young, but there was Bill Warren, and Bill loved Georgie. Did Georgie love him? No one knew, not even Georgie herself.

Bill was a darling. Ann reflected, and not a bit sober and dull, for all that he was so reliable, so honest. He wasn't handsome, but he was terribly young and nice-looking. And he was awfully poor, but if he was going to be awfully rich. Didn't he even say so himself?

It would be a good thing for Georgie to marry him—to marry him right now in the first flush of her youth and sweetness. Georgie married! Ann smiled again. Somebody must look for her, take care of her. Bill—yes Bill Warreg was the man.

A whistle shrieked. Ann rose and left her desk. As she passed out she saw a figure at the door. It was the man she had been thinking about Bill Warren himself.

"Hello, Ann. Let's eat together Come on—what do you say?"

"I'd love to, Bill."

He looked at her with his smiling eyes, brown eyes that gazed steadily. He gave a little squint to keep the sun out of them, grinned at her. What a peach she was, he thought!

"What are you doing here, B[illegible]?"

"Oh, I don't know. Georgie was bawling with somebody or other." His voice went off in a grumble and for a moment the sun was out of his

PARIS, Oct. 31.—I feel like Cinderella.

I had hoped for happy days in Paris, but in my fondest dreams I never realized it would be so marvelous.

Here I am in a luxurious, royal suite in the Hotel Lotti amidst the langorous odor of hundreds of roses and orchids sent me by boon friends and strangers.

I'm writing this as if I were lost in a strange dream. Everyone—everything has been so perfectly wonderful.

I feel much rested on this, my fourth day in Paris, but the cold which I got when I plunged into the

Are the letters in the 'Advice to the Lovelorn' column in the Boston American real letters?" people ask me; and they often seem surprised when I tell them, "Of course they are real!"

They come to me by the thousands on all sorts of paper, love stories hauntingly pathetic, pleas for advice from girls and men—letters from lonely office workers and college boys . . . and READ—all of them real, as you and I are real—real as our hunger for romance and adventure!

To me these letters are more than mere letters. They are vivid cross-sections of life, dramatic struggles against temptation, battles for high ideals—proving that fact is indeed stranger than fiction.

Around some of these letters I have woven a serial and called it THE LOVELORN, basing its incidents upon the experience of a Boston girl who asked me for advice, but keeping her identity secret just as I keep secret the names of all those who write to me.

Through our correspondence I watched her as she strove to find happiness, proud and thankful that I was able to help her.

HEARST TRIED TO STOP FORD'S 'BAITING'

Shotgun Lays Man Low in Mystery Love Plot

SAPIRO'S STORY OF 'ATTACKS'

Suit Hero Says Hearst Offered to Buy Ford's Paper and Then "Junk It"

New York, Oct. 31.—William Randolph Hearst was ready to spend $1,500,000 of his own money to stop Henry Ford's attacks on the Jews.

Such was the story told by Aaron Sapiro, hero of the million dollar libel suit against the automobile king.

Speaking before a capacity congregation of the Free Synagogue in Carnegie Hall, Sapiro said:

"Mr. Hearst sent Arthur Brisbane to Ford under instructions to offer as high as $1,500,000 for the Dearborn Independent. It was Mr. Hearst's plan to buy it and then to junk it, so that it could not go on publishing the scurrilous and unfounded attacks up the Jews."

Two thousand people crowded into the auditorium to hear Sapiro speak. Three thousand others vainly tried to get into the hall to hear Sapiro on "My Million Dollar Suit Against Henry Ford: Its Inception, Its Objectives and Its Settlement."

Sapiro denied that huge sums of money were involved in the settlement.

The reasons for bringing the suit were thus outlined by Sapiro:

"I was not interested in Ford's money. But I did intend to prove he was all wrong in his charges against me, against the Jews and against co-operative marketing."

LAW NEEDED TO CHECK WILD AIR PILOTS

While Boston's harbor police sought vainly today to discover identity of the wild pilot whose plane zipped off the stern lightmast of the police boat Guardian, Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin criticized the lack of State li[illegible]ense laws governing flyers.

Registrar Goodwin asserted that even if the wild pilot is uncovered and his identity learned, it probably will appear that he cannot suspend the pilot's license, for the simple reason that he probably holds a Federal paper and none from the State.

"Our present laws are inadequate," he said, "and the State is tied by our own provisions—or rather the lack of them. There is need right now of drastic laws to cover operations of airpiance."

The registrar likened the present airplane situation to the situation that existed in 1903, when automobiles were just beginning to cause murmurs among the populace.

"If this man holds a State license and it is proven to me that he flew in a manner tending to endanger the lives of the public, I will revoke that license. But I doubt very much if the man who did the wild flying has a State license."

Although the police of Station 4 carried their investigation to the Boston Airport today and, there, were given fullest co-operation, no clew as to the unidentified flier was gave the passengers aboard the White Star liner Celtic ton many thrills, was gained.

The police boat Guardian was standing by the Celtic at the time the Guardian's mast was stripped off and when the aviator narrowly missed crushing the liner's forward smokestack. . .

DR. COOK WINS PLEA FOR SUPREME COURT REVIEW

Washington, Oct. 31 (A.P.).—Dr. Frederick A. Cook today was granted a Supreme Court review of the decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals holding that the district court in which he was convicted on the charge of using the mails to defraud had no authority to release him on probation.

A MODERN 'CINDERELLA'

Martha C. Dunder, who last year won the title of "Miss Cinderella" hopes to retain it next January at the annual Boston Shoe Style Show at the Copley-Plaza. Miss Dunder resides in Waltham and last year was an easy winner. This year girls will be chosen from various cities and from among them will be chosen the "Miss Cinderella of America" for 1928. She holds the title for a year.

Wife Burns $5,000 Life Savings Mate Draws From Bank

Kittanning, Pa., Oct. 31 (A.P.)—Five thousand dollars in bills were used to kindle a fire in the home of Peter Zalensky here.

Zalensky drew the money, his life's savings, from the bank Saturday and neglected to tell his wife that he left it, wrapped in a newspaper, in the kitchen.

That was the newspaper she used to start the fire

PERFECT FEET TO WIN TITLE

Who will be the "Miss Cinderella" of 1928?

A test to choose the girl with the most perfect feet, and so win the title of "Miss Cinderella of America," opened today in conjunction with the annual Boston Shoe Style Show, by the Boston Shoe Buyer at the Copley-Plaza January 3, 4 and 5.

Last year Miss Martha C. Dunder of No. 3 Lexington street, Waltham, won the title of "Miss Cinderella." Entries should be sent to E. A. Richardson of the Boston Shoe Buyer, at No. 246 Lincoln street.

It is planned this year to choose representative girls from the various cities of New England. These will be given the title of their home city, such as Miss Boston Miss Haverhill and the like. They will be models at the Shoe Style Show.

Miss Dunder is hopeful of carrying off the honors again this year.

COLORADO WARNS I. W. W. TO STOP PICKETING

Denver, Oct. 31 (A.P.)—The State today for the first time openly challenged leaders of the Colorado coal strike called by Industrial Workers of the World with an order to stop picketing tomorrow.

"Patience has ceased to be a virtue," Governor W. H. Adams told I. W. W. chiefs through Adjutant-General Paul Newton. In informing Roger Francyson, head of the I. W. W., that the Governor had decreed picketing was unlawful, the Adjutant-General warned that any intimidation of miners wishing to work, any demonstrations or attempts to communicate with workers would not be tolerated.

sea with the American Girl still stays with me. I'm much thinner, too, perhaps I'll have to try American breakfasts again.

"For the first time since I left New York, so many days ago, I have been able to change my sod kni kers and short sweater for a real dress. Mrs. Barton K. Yount, wife of the military attache of the American Embassy, came to my rescue and completely outfitted me from her wardrobe.

"It certainly felt good to be dressed like a woman again.

"As soon as I had donned the new things, we started for the Arc de Triomphe where George Haldeman and I went to pay our respects at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

"I was startled to see a large crowd waiting there for us as we came up Champs Elysees. As we approached the Arc the people began cheering. It was bewildered since I felt it was such a solemn occasion and didn't expect that the would cheer us.

"As I approached the tomb, there was a sudden lump up in my throat which I could not control. My thoughts went out to the mother of the boy sleeping there. I wondered who she might be and I thought of all the other mothers and their suffering for their boys in the war.

Sometime later and guided by Mrs Yount I started on a very important mission—that of shopping. We visited several prominent courturiers. Here was fa ryland, indeed.

To make a frank confession, I have always felt more comfortable in sport clothes, but I have always been vain enough to want beautiful fem inine things.

AT NUNGESSER HOME

I bought some beautiful things—things every girl yearns for. It takes so much longer to shop in Paris than in America, because here one must be fitted for everything. From two until five we shopped.

Then I returned to the hotel to rest. At seven, with Haldeman, George Veit and Mr. and Mrs. Yount, I visited Madame Nungesser at her home.

I was never so touched in my life, during the interview with this brave mother, who still believes her courageous son still lives. Our talk left me unnerved.

How daringly we women hope for things that can never be. Although there is absolutely no hope, I fear, that the gallant flier will ever be found, his mother still thinks he will come back some day.

Madame Nungesser showed me her boy's room, gave me a book about his life and talked to me about him. She went and I cried with her. I couldn't hold back the tears. I wish I could have cheered for her.

I was extremely tired and retired early my cold still bothering me and excitement having well spent me during the day.

NEW SPORT ENSEMBLE

Most of the dresses and hats which I bought during my shopping tours won't be delivered until Friday but I had a number of things sent to the hotel immediately. As usual I was unable to resist having a sport ensemble. This consists of tweed coat on straight lines, with collar and cuffs of beaver and lynx with beige crepe de chine. The blouse is also of beige jersey with cuffs and hip band of coat material. The skirt is short and is of tweed. I also chose a beige-colored Austrian velour hat to wear with the sport outfit.

Then I picked the most darling concoction of general wear, consisting of black jersey kasha coat with gray fox collar and cuffs, with a border of gray fur at the bottom; white and black jersey blouse over which the gray kasha is with inset bands of same material. For this I selected close-fitting, black taupe hat.

Then for immediate evening wear I chose a gold lamb wrap, lined with black chiffon velvet with gorgeous black lynx collar and cuffs. A two-piece dress consisting of sleeveless blouse with gold embroidered black chiffon and bead-embroidered hand around hips. The skirt is of black chiffon velvet.

I have two afternoon frocks, two evening wraps, half dozen hats and many other things coming.

We next visited Rue de Paix—that glittering street of jewels. All the jewelry I have ever had was my engagement and wedding rings. Some day I hope to have two or three fine jewels as all women dream of having.

But no jewel I will ever possess can take the place of the elite diamond studded wedding ring which is nearest and dearest to my heart. And I surely would love to save the dear boy who gave it to me here in Paris with me.

I've been criticized in many places for not doing my duty by my husband. People declare my place should be at home. But my husband is modern and thinks that if woman does not want to stay at home, and does not need to, and can be of service to the world and at the same time be happy and make her husband by doing things outside the home, it is all right.

Lyle, my husband, was perfectly happy to have me come on this trip. He was happy to think that I was brave enough to attempt it.

Lyle worried but he said nothing. We have both married two years and are very close to each other. I think worlds of him and he thinks the world of me. He never told me not to go, though I knew he was worried a great deal.

If he didn't ask me not to go, because he knew my heart was set on going and he did not want to make me unhappy by telling me not to go. He was very unhappy because he could not wait for the uncertain day I was to take off.

Are YOU Willing To Pay Penalty of Kidney Neglect?

Thousands of lives might be saved every year, says an authority, if people would only flush out their kidneys and get rid of body poisons. They seem to forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get clogged and need flushing occasionally. Without this, it is no wonder so many folks have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach and all sorts of bladder disorders.

There is no mild, easy, ideal method of keeping the kidneys clean and active as simply take a tablespoonful of JAD SALTS in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days. This is inexpensive, cannot be had, and makes a delightful lithia-water drink as JAD SALTS are made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia. Not only do they flush and stimulate the kidneys, but also help neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus aiding in the relief of bladder complaints. You will find this a pleasant recipe a wonder to "put you up." Get a four-ounce bottle of JAD SALTS from your druggist today, try it tomorrow morning; then see for yourself

Harvard Serves Notice on Yale to Be Ready for Royal Battle Here

By JOE CASHMAN

HARVARD is still far removed from its peak and, on the face of its showing against Indiana, should prove a far more worthy foe for the mighty Yale eleven when these traditional rivals clash in the Stadium on November 19 than the average grid follower expects.

Comparing the Crimson and Blue on their showing against a common enemy, Dartmouth, the latter is the stronger by some seven touchdowns.

The Yale team of Saturday last may have been that much stronger than the Harvard team that faced the Green but the Elis would probably have done no better than they did against the Indians had they been playing the Crimson on Saturday.

And it is a certainty that Tad Jones' charges will have no runaway when they come here, providing the Harvard eleven continues to improve at the same rate as it did between the Dartmouth and Indiana games.

The latent power of this 1927 Horween machine is tremendous. Traces of this great hidden strength come to the surface occasionally, as in that fourth period of the Indiana game when the Crimson-jerseyed youths swept the opposition aside as though it didn't exist and battered their way to three touchdowns in less than ten minutes.

HARVARD MAY BE TOUGH FOR YALE

That one flash showed just what the team is capable of and if this power can be harnessed, Harvard is going to be one tough team for any opponent that happens in its path.

Indiana is far from weak. The Hoosiers held Minnesota with its great Herb Joesting, all-American back, to a 14 to 14 tie and gave Notre Dame several uneasy moments before going down, 19 to 6.

The Crimson's showing against the Wabash eleven was better than either that of the Rockne charges or "Cupie" Sneers' pupils and either of these aggregations, all will admit, is about as good as the best in East.

Don't run away with the idea that Harvard has a great seven today. It hasn't. The team must show a lot of improvement in nearly every department of the game to stand a chance against Penn, Brown and Yale, its remaining opponents.

It showed signs, however, in that Indiana game of possessing all the qualifications of greatness, and if it ever succeeds in reaching its peak, it ought to prove a mighty grid machine.

It came fast between the Dartmouth and Indiana games.

Will it continue to improve or will it suffer another lapse as it did after the Holy Cross game?

That question must remain unanswered until after the game with Penn in Philadelphia next Saturday, but upon the answer depends the Crimson's chances for the rest of the season.

Both the line and the backfield showed great improvement, offensively and defensively last Saturday.

The team employed virtually nothing new in its attack, but it ran off its standard plays with a dash and spirit that was sorely lacking in early season games.

The presence of Potter and Mason, a pair of sophomores, worked wonders in the ball-carrying department. Potter was his outstanding Harvard star of the day. He threw forwards, either long or short, and threw them accurately, and did all the kicking.

He also blocked in the most approved fashion and backed up the line as though he knew what it was all about. He gave the best performance of defensive play of any Harvard player in years.

LINE SHOWS STEADINESS

Mason added a lot of speed to the lineup. The end run was a ground gainer for Harvard when this soph carried the ball whereas in previous games, the Crimson backs were usually smeared on this play.

The entire backfield was always on the alert and took advantage of every break and mistake of the opposition.

The line, though, was what really made the ball-carriers stand out. The forwards carried out their assignments to the letter and by so doing made the backfield look like a million dollars.

The guards, Parkinson and Simonds, were the outstanding linemen, but Bell at centre, and Barrett and Pratt at tackles, showed vast improvement.

The end play of the Crimson was a pleasant surprise. For the first time this season, the men on the extremities of the Harvard line acted like wings, using their hands and batting wide plays long enough to allow the secondary to come up and smear them.

The freak Indiana shift which usually found five men on one side of centre when the ball was put in play, puzzled the forwards a lot in the first half and the Hoosiers made two great sustained advances down the field because the Crimson linemen wouldn't shift to meet this unbalanced formation.

In the last half, though, the Harvard wall was spaced far more evenly and Indiana found it impossible to penetrate.

The generalship of the Harvard team was good, too. Gordon Browne started at quarter and did a fine job and French, who replaced him, did even better. On his showing in Saturday's game, French rates as the best of the Harvard field generals.

Thus far we have mentioned only the strong points in Harvard's play.

WEAK TACKLING AND PUNTING

From that it might be taken that the Crimson was perfect Saturday. Such was not the case, far from it.

The team as a whole is still weak in the tackling department, better than it was, but far below the standard. Guarnaccia made one tackle that was heard all over the Stadium late in the game, but that was an exception and until it is the rule, Harvard will always be in danger when the enemy has the ball.

The kicking also was rather poor. It looked good enough in comparison to Indiana's booting because the Hoosiers were weak in this department, but the Horween charges aren't going to ascend any gridiron heights if the punting doesn't improve.

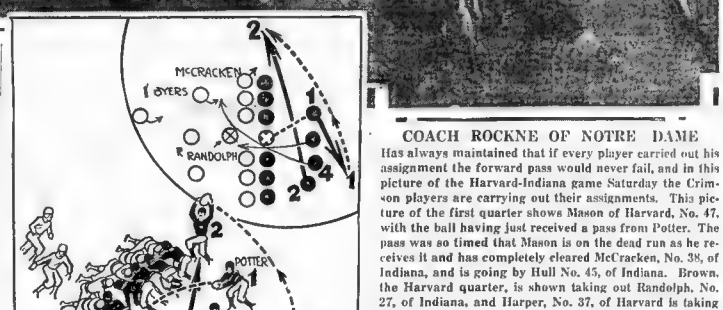
More variety in attack would also be welcome. The choice of plays is too limited. They may suffice against one team, but when another shows up and smears them, Harvard is usually done for the afternoon.

Last, but not least, some way should be discovered to make the team believe in its own great power at all times. When the machine gets going on high, it is almost impossible to stop, but when the enemy shows any great attacking power, the Crimson has a habit of becoming panic-stricken or something and crumbling defensively.

The strong points of this Harvard team, however, far outnumber the weak ones and the prospects of success are brighter than at any time this season.

Let the team keep on improving and whip both Penn and Brown and there will be one royal battle in the Stadium of November 19, for his mighty Yale team, conqueror of the Army and Dartmouth, plays only old-fashioned football, relying almost entirely on man power to win, and Harvard's one-ton eleven has no license to lose in any battle of brute strength, providing it is at its peak.

ONE HOOSIER WHO REFUSED TO BE CLEANED OUT



COACH ROCKNE OF NOTRE DAME

Has always maintained that if every player carried out his assignment the forward pass would never fail, and in this picture of the Harvard-Indiana game Saturday the Crimson players are carrying out their assignments. This picture of the first quarter shows Mason of Harvard, No. 47, with the ball having just received a pass from Potter. The pass was so timed that Mason is on the dead run as he receives it and has completely cleared McCracken, No. 38, of Indiana, and is going by Hull No. 45, of Indiana. Brown, the Harvard quarter, is shown taking out Randolph, No. 27, of Indiana, and Harper, No. 37, of Harvard is taking out Byers, No. 16, Indiana halfback. Mason, with the ball, is headed for the side line. Stephenson, No. 34, of Indiana, has failed to hit the ground after his collision with a Harvard man. He who drove Mason out of bounds after a seven-yard gain and a first down. At the top of the picture is an Indiana helmet which confused both the spectators and Harvard players. It appeared like a loose ball as it shot out of a scrimmage.

Football Experts Handed Jolt by Mr. Boston

Mr Boston's average as a picker of football winners was considerable higher than his score as a hunter.

After talking things over with a couple of traffic cops and a few vaudeville artists, Mr. Boston named Harvard to beat Indiana, Dartmouth to wallop Yale, Boston College to trim Fordham and Tufts to upset Boston University. Yale deprived Mr. Boston of a clean sweep.

When interviewed today, the veteran said:

"I have proved the worth of expert opinion. I know absolutely nothing about football and so picked three out of four winners. I made my selections after sizing up the colors of the rival elevens."

COBB IS DONE AS PLAYER

Detroit, Oct. 31 (I N S.).—Ty Cobb one of the greatest baseball players of all time, is through with the game, according to a story published today by Bert Walker, sporting editor of the Detroit Times.

While official announcement of Cobb's retirement will not be made until after he has conferred with Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, baseball fans have looked upon Cobb in a uniform for the last time, Walker says.

Cobb stopped over in Detroit today. He expects to see Connie Mack tomorrow.

SUIT AGAINST HORNSBY TO BE SETTLED OUT OF COURT

St Louis, Mo., Oct. 31 (I N S.).—Indications the suit of Frank L. Moon, betting commissioner, against Rogers Hornsby for $92,000 Moon claims is owed him by the former manager of the Card nats, would be settled out of court were seen today, when the case was continued by agreement until December 19.

'Cav' Pays Tribute to Boston College Team

By MAJOR FRANK W. CAVANAUGH,
Head Coach Fordham University.
Former Head Coach Boston College.

In one of the hardest football games contested in New York this year the Boston College team beat Fordham, 27 to 7. The game was played much more closely than the score would indicate.

Slashing play predominated with Boston taking advantage of every break.

Weston opened the game by returning Fordham's kick-off ninety yards for a touchdown. The play was marked by some of the best interfering I have ever seen.

The Eagle left halfback hardly wavered from his course as he shot squarely through the centre of the field for the first score of the game.

The opening kick-off seemed to inspire the Maroon eleven, who recovering its own kick-off, rushed the ball to Boston's ten-yard line, where Murphy intercepted a pass which might possibly have resulted in a score for the New York team.

Fordham renewed the attack after Dower's punt to midfield, but the sting of their running attack was missing and they were again forced to resort to an aerial offensive which was ineffectual.

After an exchange of kicks Delaney's punt was blocked by Herman and forward passes from Weston to Creedon and Murphy, the latter crossing the goal line, were responsible for the second touchdown.

Captain O'Brien kicked Delaney's punt in the second quarter, and followed the ball over the goal line to the third touchdown, the point being missed by the same player.

In the third period Delaney punted to Weston on the Eagle 40-yard line, the Boston veteran dashing through the left side of the Ford.am defense for the fourth touchdown, the goal from which made their total 27 and ended the Eagles' scoring for the day.

In the last period after ard runs by O'Connor and Buckley had put the ball in scoring position, Delaney went over for a Maroon touchdown.

Noted Spanish Matador Through Throwing Bulls

Barcelona, Oct. 31 (I N S.).—All Spain was alarmed today by news that one of its most popular heroes of the bull ring, Juan Garcia Belmonte, may never fight again because of an injury.

The noted matador was wounded yesterday in a fight witnessed by the Queen, her children, Premier Primo De Rivera and other notables.

Physicians said today that the wound, in the abdomen, was not exceedingly grave.

Friends of Belmonte today expressed belief that Belmonte's injury would cause his permanent retirement from the ring.

DEMPSEY TO FIGHT KEARNS

New York, Oct 31 (I N S.).—Jack Dempsey has returned to New York to fight, but not with his fists.

His opponent will be Jack Kearns, his erstwhile pal and manager, and the bout will be decided on legal points. The Blackstone code will be substituted for the Marquis of Queensberry rules and there will be [illegible] rounds.

A [illegible] to be staged in the [illegible] week. Besides the cash for $35,000 bruised in hours [illegible] breach of contract, the former champion will defend another brought by Teddy Hayes for back pay.

Hayes was formerly Dempsey's trainer. He is still in the employ of Kearns as a trainer for Mickey Walker.

Dempsey's fighting plans are pretty well defined. He does not intend to do any [illegible] this Winter, but hopes to [illegible] bouts next Spring and summer. The champion would [illegible] to a third Tunney fight.

Operators Hold Bouts

What promises to be one of the best [illegible] boxing shows of the [illegible] will be staged by the Massachusetts Auto Operators' Association at the [illegible] Auditorium Thursday night. [illegible] Norwood.

B. C. Rooters Return With the Goal Posts

The Boston College rooters were [illegible] on special trains [illegible] through the city today following the [illegible] victory over New York, where the Maroon and Gold team walloped Fordham.

So that everything would be perfectly proper, the Boston College boys brought along the Fordham goal posts.

HARVARD PLANS FOR PENNSY

Renewed Interest in Crimson Team as Result of Its Encouraging Game Saturday

Theoretically Harvard should lose to Penn in Philadelphia next Saturday.

Harvard has won its three games on consecutive Saturdays thus far this season and by plain numerical reasoning the coming Saturday should be an off-day for the Crimson.

Harvard has won the odd games. Against Holy Cross and Indiana and has lost to Purdue and Dartmouth on even Saturdays.

From the showing of the Crimson team last Saturday the pupils of Arthur Horween will break the [illegible] and Pennsylvania will be the victims of this abrupt break [illegible] solution.

[illegible] is going to supply the [illegible] Harvard [illegible] material. Horween now has ten backs, all varsity men.

[illegible] in this present season [illegible] this year has Harvard [illegible] in the opening [illegible] are no wonders as [illegible] but their steady [illegible] week to week [illegible] outstanding afternoon [illegible] Franklin Field for [illegible] Howie Burns, [illegible] Harper, Potter, [illegible] and Conahy [illegible] forces. One [illegible] could make a [illegible] their own [illegible] thing this coming [illegible] a starting four [illegible] a task for the [illegible]

APPROACHING PEAK.

Harvard seems to be just reaching its peak. The Crimson line has been coming along in fine fashion. Coach Bike Dunne's effective work is just beginning to tell.

He has spent plenty of time and patience on the present incumbents and this week will round together the six hot tried veterans, Turner and Shapiro, for starts in the guard berths.

Bill Leary, varsity guard, will return to the end squad this week fully recovered from his ankle injury. The youngest youngster is a tough customer, and his defensive work featured the early season workouts.

Leary will push Lord, Strong, Pratt, Coombs, Douglas, Pickard and Burns for all he is worth in order to win a starting berth at end against the Quakers.

Horween plans four intensive workouts for his team this week. He intends to use the Soldiers Field quarters for the first four days of the week, Thursday night the squad will pull out for Pennsy stopping off at New York Thursday night. Friday they are scheduled to work out on Franklin Field.

ALL ABOARD FOR PHILLY.

The win over Indiana has boomed the pilgrimage of Crimson students. Two trains have been chartered to leave Boston Friday night, arriving in New York Saturday morning and the crowd will proceed to Philadelphia by train.

TO PLEAD DI MOTT'S CASE

Mr. Rocco Will Represent Everett Ineligible at School Board Meeting Tonight

John J. Rocco of Everett, representing Angie (DiMott) Muzzi, will try to convince the Everett High School Board tonight that a mistake has been made in declaring his client ineligible to take part in high school athletics.

A special meeting has been arranged by Chairman Charles Bruce of the School Committee, following a plea of the admirers of DiMott.

DiMott's mother has sworn that the boy is only 15. However, Wilbur J. Rockwood, Everett head master, received word from Harr shure, Pa., where the records of birth claimed to have the record of DiMott, that he was born in 1907 and not 1908, so he was declared ineligible.

The decision of the School Board tonight will probably be final.

Everett proved that the loss of DiMott did not weaken the team when it trounced Medford Saturday, but it is not in football where DiMott will be missed most. He is one of the best schoolboy baseball players in schoolboy ranks.

Boxer Must Keep Mind on His Work, Says Gene

By GENE TUNNEY
(World's Heavyweight Champion.)

A YEAR ago when I made a theatrical tour of the country giving boxing exhibitions on a vaudeville circuit, I soon learned that stage work was a business in itself.

Professional boxing is one field of endeavor, while theatrical work is another. To attempt to combine the two is nearly always fatal to the success of one or the other.

In order to do full justice to a boxing career, a man has to keep his mind on his work. He must literally "think, eat and sleep" boxing. When his mind begins to drift, his chances for remaining at the top diminish.

Billy Gibson relates an incident of this nature in connection with Benny Leonard.

The light-weight champion at the peak of his career was preparing for a national vaudeville engagement. At a conference in Gibson's office, Leonard stood in front of the fight manager's desk and recited some of the "lines" and "wisecracks" to be used in his act.

Billy, whose mind has little room for thoughts other than those dealing with the fistic "art," was in a rage. "It is time to quit the ring," he told Leonard. "When you mind drifts away from boxing, get out of the game."

But Benny had already decided to retire and he left the ring still wearing the crown.

WILLIE RITCHIE might have held the lightweight championship indefinitely but for his outside interests—stage dancing and retail store business.

Harry Greb, one of the "great fighting-heart" boxers, was a "play boy" by nature. He did not believe in long, arduous and serious training before a fight.

One of his "exploits" consisted of appearing in the brightlight "Roaring Forties" of New York, the night before his bout with Mickey Walker in 1925.

In this instance, however Greb was "playing" strategy as the knowledge of his hour brought down odds on the fight, which he won handily along with several thousand dollars in wagers.

In other branches of sport, the same rule applies. Once drifting sets in, the athlete suffers a handicap.

Last Winter "Big Bill" Tilden hurried from the stage of a Broadway theatre where he was appearing in a play, to a Brooklyn armory to be defeated by one of the French invaders for the U. S. Indoor Tennis Championship. The glare of the stage footlights had affected the American champion's eyesight.

WHENEVER my mind begins to drift from the fight-game I will withdraw from the sport. But at present there is no indication of this taking place. Boxing is my work and my mind is on it. I do not stop training the day after a fight, but aim to keep fit at all times.

Every during the difficult vaudeville tour, after the short period of stage boxing, I would go three full rounds with Frank Muske and Happy Howard backstage.

Often I am asked why I do not spend more time in New York City. The reason I prefer to live in the country is to keep in sound physical condition and to prevent any drifting.

SUGGS IS SURE HE WILL WIN

Chick Suggs, colored flash from New Bedford, today starts his last week of training for his bout with Sammy Fuller at the Arena a week from tonight, fully confident that he will recapture the New England featherweight title from the hard-hitting little Italian.

Suggs has never wanted to win a match as badly as his coming one with Fuller. He beat Fuller once, handling him like a baby, when Fuller was just stepping out of the preliminary ranks, and the black streak from New Bedford feels, along with thousands more, that he was entitled to the decision when they met for the second time.

There is no longer any doubt about Fuller's ability to make the featherweight limit of 126 pounds,

MULLEN TO HOLD HEAVY TITLE BOUT

Chicago Promoter Says Tunney Will Fight for Him After Sept. 1, 1928

Chicago, Oct. 31 A.P.)—An unwritten law that it isn't a heavyweight championship fight unless Tex Rickard promotes it will be broken here next September, if Promoter Jim Mullen, Chicago bout maker, carries on with plans he announced today.

Gene Tunney, the champion has signed no papers binding him to a Chicago fight Mullen said, but has indicated a readiness to defend his crown under Mullen's promotion at Soldier Field, Chicago, sometime for September 1 1928. Rickard is understood to have Tunney's promise to fight under his auspices before set date.

Mullen said that there would be a top price of $5—the lowest in recent years for a heavyweight affair. There will be only a few thousand of these $5 seats. The remainder ranging down to an undetermined minimum.

Mullen said four Chicago millionaires will back his backers. The financial arrangements with Tunney on hand would be about the same as Rickard's when Tunney fought Jack Dempsey at Soldier Field September 22.

Two other championship fights are slated for Chicago by Mullen.

In one of them Mickey Walker will defend his middleweight title next year against a challenger to be chosen probably Tiger Flowers. In the other Sammy Mandell will defend his lightweight championship.

Mullen said Tunney probably will come to Chicago within a month, at which time Mullen believes a contract will be signed.

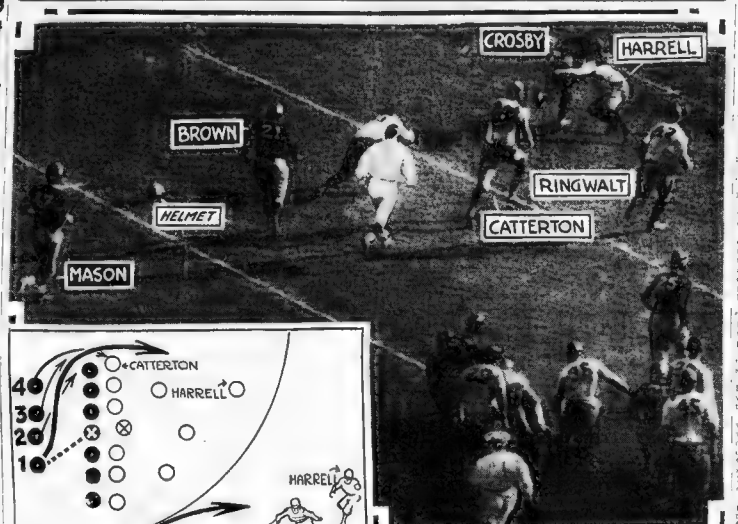
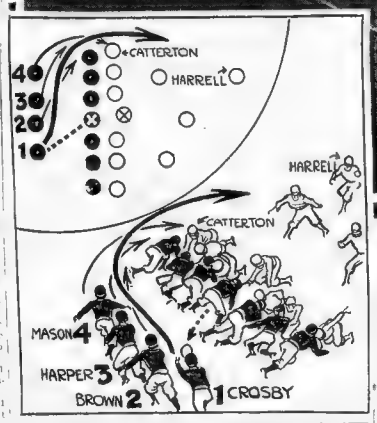
REACHING THE INDIANA SAFETY PLAYERS





JOE CROSBY NEARLY BROKE LOOSE

As this picture shows after he had taken a pass from Bell and started around Indiana's right side. The Harvard forwards and interferers have functioned fairly well, but they have not finished their job. Mason No. 47 and Brown 21, in this picture, put out Catterton No. 28, but he refused to stay down. He is shown in the picture dashing after Crosby who is in the grasp of Harrell, No. 26. Ringwalt, No. 47, the Indiana guard, is trying to overtake Crosby. Note at left of picture the Indiana helmet lying on the ground. The fans and a few of the Harvard players often times thought these loose helmets were loose balls.

Yale Didn't Need to Scout Dartmouth

By BILL GRIMES.

In the East, the outstanding upsets last Saturday were furnished by Harvard, Navy, Colby and Norwich, while Illinois, Ohio State and Missouri played similar roles in the Western Conference.

To those who had seen Dartmouth and Yale in action prior to Saturday, it is doubtful, if the result of the Bowl engagement came as a surprise, and the same is true of the Brown-Temple game.

Following the Temple and Harvard games, Dartmouth's offense was hailed to the skies here is no denying that the Green and a wonderfully effective running and overhead attacks.

That it was wonderful against the Cherry and Crimson. But the plaudits which brought praise to Dartmouth after the Temple and Harvard games, failed against the Bulldog.

Naturally there was some reason for this failure. Dartmouth to function against the Blue Yale and Yale only was the reason.

It is time that losing football teams admitted that they were inferior to the winning elevens, instead of resorting to that now famous weekly alibi, "we were below our usual standard."

Darth uth used the same players and plays against Yale that defeated Temple and Harvard. In all probability they would have repeated against the Cherry and Crimson had Saturday, but unfortunately for Dartmouth they were to play Yale. Tad Hale substituted Dartmouth by the same margin the men of Hales outclassed Temple and Harvard.

Yale has low power and brains so essential to a winning team.

Harvard acquired Dartmouth to the limit, but went down to a 20 to 6 defeat. Yale and Dartmouth were on a pass-outing agreement, and there is no reason for not believing that both teams lived up to the agreement. Yet Yale stopped every one of Dartmouth drives. The Green spurted for a few moments in the opening quarter, but after that they were unable to get away with a thing.

Yale has a fast, powerful line. The blue line is composed of veterans, all of whom are blessed with a keen knowledge of the game.

Coupled with its speed and power the Yale line has the poundage to withstand a far heavier type of onslaught than offered by Dartmouth. That is why little deception in the Yale attack. Bet with such a line and backs of the Brue Caldwell and Johnnie Garvey type a varied offense is not necessary.

The fast, hard charging Yale line and the fierce tackling of the Eli secondary defense will go to Tad Jones' charges the edge on about any opponent before the close of the first half.

CAV IN TRIBUTE TO BOSTON COLLEGE and kicked the ball.

The result of the game seems to make both elements in a very happy condition. Boston completed the strong comeback predicted in the West Side. Wesley in game after in desperate scrimmage against Penn and to-day.

I would wager a guess that the Triple outfit that flew over against Penn would be more than before the Southerners of "Hot" McClung's team.

Weston was the outstanding star of the game. His 63 and 99 yard runs for touchdowns were two of the greatest open field efforts ever seen on a New York gridiron. Creighton before his injury in the second period, was a thorn in the side of Fordham.

Dower a big, big, passing and defensive work were outstanding. The Eagle backs were very powerful with Captain Ryben especially prominent.

The most noticeable improvement in Fordham was the steady showing by the center of the line. Against Lafayette Fordham's Bednarski and Bruce formed a trio that was solid on defense and effective on attack.

Susceptibility to injuries and weakness in protection to kicker were responsible for the Maroon downfall. O'Connor's running was chiefly responsible for Fordham's touchdown against Boston U. in seven years. Alone on Saturday, the Maroon seems to have a worthy successor to "Zeke" Graham.

Boston College played a superb game. The showing of Captain Cleveland seemed to be the one for losses they passed the ball to men who either caught or stopped it on the forward pass to the line of scrimmage.

On its showing against Fordham I predict that Boston College will win the majority of its games during the rest of the season.

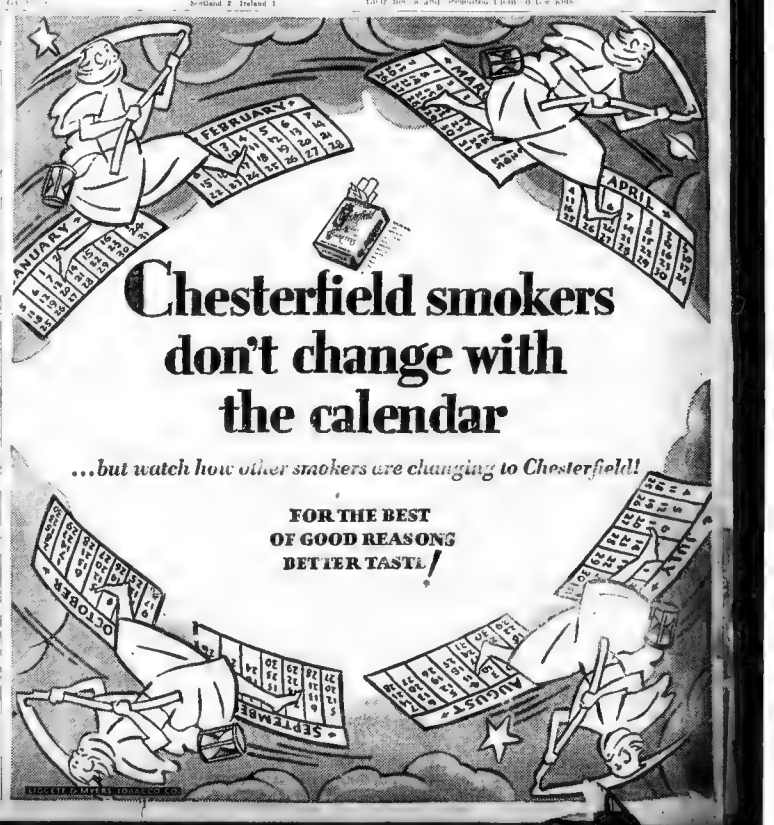
BOBBY BROWN SEEKS REVENGE

[illegible]



MR. BOSTON By Jack Conway

"THE New Hampshire guide was accommodating anyway," said Mr. Boston as he breezed into the sporting department today togged to the nines in a hunting costume. "The first crack out of the box he asked 'What do you want to hunt, a bear or a deer?'

I told him I would be very much surprised that if he could show me a couple of rabbits I would be pretty well off.

"Rabbits!" replied the guide. Then clearing his throat up he said: "One must never go on a hunting trip alone. It is unsportsman like and improper, so Ch told me.

"It said no one can tell the nature of an animal after he has been on a hunt or trip with them. Takes a meeting in the wide open places when it tend to wash off the false veneer of fo and make people act natural.

"I figured I had mapped out a rather powerful program when I passed by bear and deer hunting for my friends of the members of the

"AS a schoolboy I had learned that rabbits were rather prolific creatures. This is one of the reasons I didn't think the guide was exaggerating when he stated two would be enough for me after we had [illegible] weeks for a couple of days.

"I now wish to make a confession. For one whole day I trudged the woods in and around North Conway and I didn't see a thing which resembled an animal. Apparently the game had gone on a vacation or something. Our tough mound dog worked overtime, but didn't get any results. It was suggested by one of the natives that the trouble was with the dog but I defended him with all of my might. It was a tough day, but I like the dog mighty well I was doing my best.

"THAT evening the guide suggested that we might gain a little recreation by hunting skunks. It had first been bears or deer, but it ended up with plain, ordinary skunk. As a boy, I had heard friends from the country telling rather weird tales of the antics of skunks and so I decided to pass up this branch of the noble game of hunting. I feared we might be going against too many skunks and I would hate to have such a meeting occur in my rooms away from home and with only one outfit in the kind.

"I left right of Jack Shanley a famous hunter as well as a heavyweight boxer of yesteryear. I remembered that Jack once told me he did a lot of hunting around Epping N. H. so I decided to lead my wife party in the direction of Epping. We were up with the sun and started [illegible] the middle of the morning.

"I let on word that I was a crack shot when he told of a lot of the tough wolves and lions we had [illegible] Then hopped all over me. socked up my lies and ran around on my shoulder. I stuffed me to the full of lunch and then I had a couple of [illegible] bags which I had taken along with me.

"After the hound dog waggled his tail and started happily as he led the way into the woods. We tramped miles and miles through the woods, and each time I asked the guide if that was where any skunks lived. When I got back home I took some of the [illegible] out of my pockets, and I have never had such an interesting [illegible] ribbons around [illegible] and [illegible] from [illegible] pals.

Finger Nails May Be Natural Jewels

By Maria Jeritza,

Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day.

THERE are no jewels that compare in delicate beauty with the opalescent finger nails of well-kept hands. They are natural jewels of the fingers. [illegible] but devote a little systematic and intelligent care to the grooming of her finger-nails.

Can you afford to go to an expert manicurist several times weekly, and give her charge of the grooming of your nails, or still more luxurious—can you manage to have her come to you? If so, by all means do. You will find it restful to let her beautify your hands while you relax. And the exquisite loveliness of well-groomed nails is worth any time and expense devoted to them.

But even though you have little time and less money to spend on the grooming of your nails, do not despair. For you can get marvelous results if you know how to manicure them correctly and will devote a few minutes each day to the purpose.

Needless to say, the first requisite of a successful manicure is clean instruments. See that your towels, your nail brush, your absorbent cotton, cuticle sticks and file are in sanitary, spick and span condition.

The second requisite is that your own hands be clean. Scrub your hands and nails well with warm soap suds and a nail brush, especially at the finger tips, under the nail ends and at their base.

After washing your nails and hands, file your nails to the shape and length you prefer. A long flexible steel file is best for the purpose, and it should be wielded dexterously with long, even strokes from the side of the nails to the tip, as this movement is with, not against the natural grain of the nails.

File your nails close at the corners of longer at the tips, but not long and pointed enough to break off or split easily. The final rounding and shaping and smoothing of the edge of the nails should be done with an emery card.

The cuticle should next receive your most careful attention, because on its smoothness and looseness from the nails depends much of the beauty of your finger nails.

Every time you wash your hands, massage your cuticle backward from your nails as far as you can. At night, soften it with olive oil or cuticle cream. Excellent cuticle removers can be bought for manicure use, which loosen and soften the cuticle so that it can be shaped to disclose the pretty half moons at the base of the nails.

Wrap the point of an orangewood stick with absorbent cotton, then dip it in nail cream or lemon juice and pass it under each nail to bleach and whiten the tip. Wash and dry your nails, then apply the finishing touch to their grooming—a liquid or powder nail polish. Liquid polish in the natural pale rose tint is lovely and protects thin, brittle nails from breaking or splitting.

The entire manicuring process I have described need not take more than fifteen minutes and it should leave your nails clean, shapely and beautiful.

LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized by Mr. Edison)

Text by Arthur Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister

Edison takes no interest whatever in clothes for the purpose of adornment. He likes them in plain patterns, loose and comfortable. His measurements seldom change. For twenty years a Fifth avenue (New York) tailor made his suits without ever seeing him. He used one suit for a pattern.

Games of all kinds, indoors and out, have little appeal to the great inventor. He has a billiard room in his home, but rarely is he seen there. One might think that he would delight in solving the intricate problems of chess, but no. The old East Indian game of parcheesi is his favorite.

If you want to get Edison to drop an important experiment, tell him a good story. One bitter Winter day he stood outside his laboratory door without an overcoat, swapping stories with a friend bundled in furs. He caught pleurisy and had to be shipped to Florida to recuperate.

When Edison laughs he laughs. There is nothing half-way about it. It is free, hearty and unrestrained. He slaps his hands on his knees, rocks back and forth and fairly shouts, till the room rings with his mirth and everyone present has caught his spirit.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

The writer is desirous of knowing whether it is proper for a bridegroom to wear a wing collar with a white bow tie and a dark blue street suit, or would a black bow tie be more correct? P. T. M.

I AM not a bit in favor of you wearing either of these success. A white tie, either a bow or a four-in-hand, with a business suit always gives the impression that the groom is trying to combine formal "wedding-ee" accessories with informal clothes. Now the best rule for dressing is the selection of appropriate accessories. When the groom wears a business suit he should wear the best-looking tie that he can find of the fashion most becoming to him.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it necessary to send a gift to couple celebrating a silver anniversary with an informal reception? We have known them only a short time but they have done many nice things for us. What would be an appropriate gift and should anno be sent before the reception? How should you congratulate them an what should be said?

ANXIOUS.

INASMUCH as the couple celebrating their silver anniversary have as you say, "done many nice things for you" you should by all means send them a gift. Any piece of silver suitable to your purse would be appropriate. It should be sent before the reception. Any simple remarks on congratulating them would be in order, such as "Many happy returns of the day" or "Congratulations, may you enjoy many, many more years together."

Homework for the School Child

By CHARLES A. L. REED, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association

SHALL your growing child, after several hours spent in school be required to do additional study at home?

This is a very important question in relation to the present health and future success of the child—a question upon which I have repeatedly expressed myself in positive terms of disapproval through this column.

It is with some satisfaction, therefore, that I find (British Medical Journal) that a committee of the British Board of Education has reported that excessive homework dulls the growing mind; that the hours given to it in day schools should be considerably diminished, and that as a factor in the development of individuality it held more drawbacks than advantages.

In spite of this report, we are informed that nothing has been done about it, which shows that England, like America, is slow to follow where science leads. It is stated that in England, just as we know it to be true here, children in the secondary schools work two, three and four hours at night on their lessons.

This evil has many causes. One is the competition that exists between school and school which spurs on teachers and pupils to do everything that can be done to win the highest level of success for their school. Teachers, heads especially, strive for these results, for they bring them professional prestige. Moreover, many employers regard a leaving certificate as a passport to employment, and the certificate examinations are so difficult that insensive study is needed to pass them; as long as this is so, schools will tend to overstep reasonable limits in allotting homework.

Excessive homework in some times due to defective arrangements in schools, especially to lack of cooperation between teachers of different subjects, all of whom set separate tasks. Some schools have a time limit according to the pupil's age, but this does not seem to work in practice.

There is no doubt that the problem is an acute one. The secondary school curriculum is needlessly heavy. The work cannot be done in school hours. Moreover, some kind of leaving, or final, examination is good, as it provides an aim towards which a child may work and is a valuable indication of the quality of the work done.

Parents are to blame at times simply because homework keeps children out of mischief at home, especially in Winter when they cannot get out to play, and is a boon to many a hard-pressed mother.

Changing Viewpoint

By LUCY LOWELL.

CHANGE your mind if doing this means fuller expression of yourself to you.

Do not hang stubbornly to consistency; do not fear the charge of fickleness.

For it is inevitable that the view point should shift with experience and development of the mind. What pleased you at twenty might seem wholly unpleasing at thirty. Your belief at thirty might be your disbelief at thirty-five.

Nor does this changing of thought, ideals and ambitions mean vacillating character. Your character is you; it should not be shut away from the chance to grow by a vain clinging to outworn beliefs.

"A foolish consistency," says Emerson, "is the hobgoblin of little minds." With consistency a great soul has simply nothing to do. He will be well content himself with the shadow on the wall. Out upon your guarded lips! Else, if you would be a man, speak what you think today in words as hard as cannon balls, and tomorrow speak what tomorrow thinks in hard words again, though it contradict every thing you said today.

"An thein, exclaim the aged ladies, "you shall be sure to be misunderstood." Misunderstood! It is a right fool's word. Is it so bad, then, to be misunderstood? Pythagoras was misunderstood and Socrates and Jesus and Luther and Copernicus and Galileo and Newton, and every pure and wise spirit that ever took flesh.

I suppose no man can violate his nature. All the sallies of his will are rounded in by the law of his being as the inequalities of Andes and Himalaya are insignificant in the curve of the sphere. A character is like an acrostic: read it forward, backward or across, it still spells the same thing.

Fear never but you shall be consistent to whatever variety of actions, so they be each honest and natural in their hour. For of one thing all the actions will be harmonious, however unlike they seem.

Your conformity explains nothing. Act rough, and what you have already done ungly will justify you now.

These people are from the village of Azerbaijan and are believed to be the direct descendants of the Chaldeans, an ancient nation, whose belief is closely allied to that of the people of whom I am writing, the Yezai.

The Yezai believe that the earth is a large mass shaped like the top of a table, surrounded by a wall of mountains. However, in this day of enlightenment it would seem unpossible for anyone, after he or she has passed the age of discretion, to still subscribe to such a belief. Nevertheless, there does today exist a tribe of people, small it is true, but numbering at least 150 families, who still think that the earth is flat.

These people are from the village than the ancient people. They believe that on the other side of the world are a race of people very much as they themselves are, but, because of their position, forced to walk on the "bottom of the world," like flies on a ceiling. They think that these people do their work while walking upside down. Of course, they have reasoned, these unfortunate people living on the bottom of the world must exist in utter darkness.

THE LINE OF BEAUTY

PREPARATIONS from formulae original with European dermotologists rest upon scientific truths endorsed by royalty. Now filling long-felt wants of discriminating American women. Restoring beauty with these preparations is not a short-lived result—a mask to be renewed daily—but a permanent condition. Night cream for dry skin, vanishing cream, milk, powder and astringent. May I tell you more?

YOU'VE NO IDEA how marvelously a perfect bob will change you until you've had your best points brought out by "Boston's Best Bobber." A real artist. He'll give you the perfection in permanents, too, or an ultra smart finger wave or lasting marcel.

I'VE JUST INVESTED in the most marvelous tapestry for a couch cover at the most reasonable price imaginable. In a shop famous for exquisite upholstery material. Wall tapestries, pillows, pillow tops and yard goods at prices that beckon you. Darling wall tapestries as low as $2.50. Do step in and see the beautiful hand-painted velvets, too. Newest note in the world of fashion.

MAKE-UP IS MORE than a dab of rouge and the smearing of lipstick. Before your next photograph, for weddings, theatricals or important social functions, treat yourself to a professional make-up. Such as are enjoyed by screen and stage stars. A fascinating service. The make-up is invisible but suggests exquisite skin, radiant health. Gives perfect grooming, that remains for hours and hours.

TRY A TREATMENT SHAMPOO for itching scalp, dandruff or any scalp trouble. First an ointment, a brisk massage, a scrubbing with a special sponge and soap—a hair tonic in the rinsing water and hand drying. The cleanest, most satisfying of shampoos. Or for out-of-town customers, the complete shampoo set for home use.

DID YOU KNOW THAT a certain shop employs a charming beauty consultant? Services free. Are you wearing the correct shades of rouge, powder, lipstick? Is your skin oily, complexion sallow; are you annoyed with skin blemishes? This lovely consultant advocates no special brand of toiletries. She'll tell you just the type of cosmetics for your particular needs. She'll advise you also regarding treatments for oily or dry hair, shampooing, scalp needs—even becoming styles of hairdressing.

CORNS AND CALLOUSES have no excuse for being when they can be so quickly put to rout by a few scientific treatments. The smallest callouse on the ball of your foot means arch trouble and shouldn't be neglected. This foot specialist is famous for relieving varicose veins, too. And his charges are so reasonable. Customers come from Cape Cod and the Maine woods for his treatment and made-to-measure shoes.

WHEN YOU'RE IN DOUBT about a gift for husband, brother and dad, why not a pair of those new luxurious silk garters? $2.00. Colorful webbing, 14K gold-plated trimming. Pure silk. Packaged most luxuriously in satin padded box. A garter that makes a real hit with the men folks—and a box beautiful enough to serve milady for trinkets. Popular for gift and bridge prizes—the answer to a remembrance for a man—something he has never owned and probably has never seen.

The LIFE and LETTERS of WOODROW WILSON

RAY STANNARD BAKER.

Felt That Princeton Problem Was Also One Affecting All Colleges

WILSON'S quad plans reached a decisive stage at the committee meeting of the board of trustees June 10, 1907. It was altogether an unusual meeting, prompted, no doubt, by the weighty matters then agitating the university. Twenty-five out of the twenty-seven trustees were in attendance.

President Wilson presented the report of the committee on social reorganization. He had worked it out with studious care, on his own typewriter, and had corrected it in his own hand. It had been discussed by the committeemen and had their general approval.

Wilson was in excellent form. Now fifty years old, he was at the height of his powers. His prestige in the university and with the board of trustees was extraordinary. Scarcely any college president in the United States occupied quite such a place of distinction as he.

He had not only made a notable record as an author, as a speaker, as an educational innovator, but he had been seriously suggested as a candidate for President of the United States. He had the vast authority of success. Up to that time he had never known failure in any major undertaking.

As he looked about him at the members of the board it was upon a company of men who trusted him, who were devoted to him.

The report completed and reinforced the statement he had made in the previous December. "A vital, spontaneous intellectual life" was the supreme purpose of the university. Great strides had been made by the introduction of the preceptorial system—the "greatest strategic move in that direction that has been made in whole history of American universities"—but progress was likely to be "checked or even nullified by hostile or unfavorable influences"—in short, "by a university life that severs the social from the intellectual interests of the place, and does not, with its scattered clubs and divided classes, make us up into a community even on the social side."

Exactly what happened in the board meeting has been hotly disputed and variously represented. All the trustees except one voted in favor of "something," and the president understood them to vote exactly in the words of the resolution, that he be authorized to proceed with the maturing of his plans and to seek the co-operation of the clubs in his elaboration.

With a vote of twenty-four trustees favoring his general plan—including Grover Cleveland, who had earlier expressed his doubts, and M. Taylor Pyne, who was later to be a bitter opponent—not one against it, he assuredly had warrant to go ahead. Several of the trustees, we know, were heart and soul with him from the beginning.

In a letter two days later David B. Jones said:

Wilson Goes Forward With His Plans With Eagerness

"The issue has been fully and clearly stated, and when the report and your statement are published alumnus can exercise the'r teeth upon them and will find more comfort in gnawing at a file than in attempting to bolster up the present social organization of the university. After your report was presented upon the report, I was most impressed by the very brief and simple statement which Mr. Pyne made. Coming from him, with his long and intimate knowledge of the situation and his close personal relations to it, it was overwhelmingly impressive and reduced to a minimum. It showed great courage and strength in a great emergency and it gave me a new insight into the man's real character."

Certainly all of those men believed that the action which the board had taken was an indorsement of the essential ideas and purposes of President's plans. Moreover, there is no evidence in the record or in the correspondence of the time that any of the trustees, except perhaps Cleveland, thought that Wilson's plan in any way interfered with the graduate college proposals or that there was any "agreement" that the graduate college should have the right of way to the exclusion of all other projects.

Indeed, at this very meeting Dodge and not only voted with the others regarding Wilson's proposals but, as chairman of the graduate college committee, discussed architects for the proposed building, but reported that there had been no decision on questions of site and plans because of the "variety of contingencies and circumstances to be weighed."

Wilson went forward exactly with his plans. It was commencement time, a time for meeting old friends, an opportunity of talking to student and alumni groups. The proposals were not only interesting; they were exciting. They were shocking. At all the club gatherings and banquets they were the one subject of discussion. What did they mean? How would they affect university life?

Wilson was attempting to abolish the clubs, but to transform them into a more closely built and useful part of the university. He said:

"Moreover, I should hope that it would be borne in mind that this scheme of social and academic coordination, which present conditions in the university seem to render imperatively necessary, is not a plan to prevent club life in Princeton. Club life is based upon social instincts and principles which it would be impossible to eradicate. But these natural instincts and tendencies would, under the new order of things, undoubtedly express themselves in a different way, a much better way than at present."

Pleased With the First Reaction Towards His Plans

Wilson was plainly much pleased after commencement with the first reaction toward his plans.

"We have a great task before us," he wrote to Cyrus H. McCormick, "but fortunately everybody who knows the issue is convinced of the necessity, and throughout commencement I have had the most gratifying indications that the alumni will lend us their support in the most loyal way; that all we have to do is to be frank with them in order to carry them with us in a body."

But his satisfaction was short-lived. "The Princeton Alumni Weekly" for June 12, contained the committee report to the trustees. Wilson's own address and his statement to the clubs, and as it circulated throughout the country, as students, alumni and faculty began to study the proposals, the storm broke.

As early as the first of July Wilson recognized that it was to be a fight to a finish. He wrote to Dr. Jacobus:

"The fight for the quads is on very merrily, and must now be seen through to a finish. I think that in the long run it will be taken soberly and judiciously enough now there is a great deal of wild talk, and amidst the wild talk scores of particulars come to life which show that the situation is even worse than I had supposed and that the remedy is absolutely imperative.'

Wilson was not the man to heal

tate, cringe and doubt when opposition came. His convictions on large principles were formed only after he had matured them deliberately in his own mind and was convinced they were right. Once formed they were fixed.

"They seemed to have for him the authority of objective, unquestioned truths. It was apparently impossible for him to make allowances for the elements of doubt and uncertainty in the convictions of men in general."

Opposition was a challenge to battle, to be waged with all the doggedness and zest of his Covenanter forebears.

In the beginning Wilson had believed that the institution of the changes he had suggested would be relatively inexpensive—the "conversion of the clubs"—but as opposition developed he saw that the university would itself have to begin at once to construct some of the quadrangles. He bought the Brokaw property, seeking money for that purpose. On July 1 we find him asking Cleveland Dodge for a letter to Mrs. Russell Sage.

"I want to ask her for money to carry out our new policies. I am more deeply convinced every day that those plans must be carried out at once. In the agitation occasioned by the new proposals, things come to the surface every day which confirm me in my belief that time is the only remedy not only, but also reveal in a new and extraordinary way the degree to which the clubs have taken precedence over the university in the thoughts and affections of our recent graduates."

Authorities outside of Princeton circles, whom he respected, tended to confirm him strongly in his resolution to proceed. He felt that in solving a Princeton problem he was solving a national problem! When at Harvard in June to deliver an address, Wilson found the leaders deeply interested and warmly congratulatory.

"If you do it, we must; and we ought all long ago to have done it," they told him. He learned that President Van Hise at the University of Wisconsin was about to put a similar plan into operation and had received a grant of $100,000 a year for the purpose.

But some even of Wilson's closest friends, Cleveland H. Dodge for example, were doubtful about pushing the plan too rapidly.

No one could have been more devoted to Wilson than Cleveland H. Dodge. He had been a classmate at Princeton, and he loved the man and his ideals with a loyalty that was lifelong. The origins of the men were widely different. Dodge was born to wealth and position, he was conservative minded, but his passion for human welfare and human progress was not less ardent than that of Wilson. He was full of kindness, thoughtfulness, generosity.

Wilson regarded Dodge's unflagging support as one of his greatest treasures of friendship.

While Dodge was warmly sympathetic with Wilson's quad proposals, he was a calmer and more cautious man. He wrote:

"I feel very strongly, as you do, about the necessity of carrying through your plans; but I think we both agree that, if we can do it by evolutionary methods rather than by revolutionary methods, it will be better."

Wilson responded immediately on July 3, 1907.

"You may be sure that I believe in evolutionary processes, but into it will inherent the evolution as nothing else will. Indeed, as I look forward to the execution of the scheme there is nothing but the fundamental one of it that gives me uneasiness. Everything else, I am sure, will work out without friction if we can get after the wa[illegible] smile. "Thought I'd run over and grab you."

"Best best thing to Georgie" Ann smiled.

"Oh, no of course not," he said indignantly. "I like you, too."

It was the simplest kind of statement, said in the simplest kind of tone, but suddenly something mysterious happened to Ann. She felt a confused sense of emotion rush over her. She dropped her eyes abruptly and looked away. Why—why had that affected her like that? She decided it was one of the mysterious moods with which life is made up, as they sat over lunch in the corner cafe.

Bill was telling her all about his newest car.

"I call it the Bug. It's awell looking. I got an oil tin body, and painted it myself. Bright yellow. See? Thought I'd run over and grab you. Ann smiled. "Best best thing to Georgie" Oh, no of course not," he said indignantly. "I like you, too."

"Ah, stop kidding me. Wait till you see the Bug—no kidding."

They were almost through lunch. Bill looked away. His face had grown a little red.

"Listen, Ann, I don't know how to say it, but—but do you suppose Georgie—I mean, does Georgie like me?"

Ann's heart strings seemed to tighten. The warm glow in his face, the shaken tones of his voice. Georgie had a reason to be proud to make a man, a man as much as Bill Warren, feel like that about it. A little stab, as if of loneliness, ran through Ann.

"I don't know, Bill," she said quietly. "She's never said anything. But—I it way don't I ask her?"

"I'm afraid too honest."

"Don't be afraid."

"You bet I won't agree."

He paused to give Ann a look. "Look—I I'm not very good at this sort of thing, you know. I'm—I'm afraid I'm not very good at it."

He leaned to give Ann a look. "Look—I I'm not very good at this sort of thing, you know. I'm—I'm afraid I'm not very good at it."

He leaned a little forward with a look that Ann almost was afraid to interpret.

"Why, Bill," she said, "you're come to me to ask me what you'd made—"

"Maybe all I wanted was encouragement."

Ann put her hand over Bill's. "I do know, Bill," she said in a low voice. "And for Georgie's sake, I hope she will say yes."

"Thanks Ann. Gosh, you're fine. Now I'm going to get it over with. I'm going right back to the office. I'll see you and you and I'll call you up tonight."

Ann went back to the factory and Bill went back to—to—to his office. It was a queer, unsettled feeling. She was happy, but she was not sure why. She would much rather have had Bill stay with her. But of course he had to go back to his office. And after all, he was going to call up tonight.

At 4 o'clock the office boy came to her desk with a message. Jimmy Mc Cormick stopped up to be done. Wouldn't come to see a show tonight. Would you? He said to ask.

Well

Ann's face fell. She had counted on Georgie to get her new dress ready for tonight.

It was hard to do it. She had looked forward so long to this evening, without so much as a thought. And now it seemed to be all dimmed at him for security in the future.

Ann put his wire glass to his lips. Scarlett knew he wasn't. It was a very good time to go to work to forget again the pain and heartache. He felt very pale, excited.

The table the faces of the three men. Nan's radiant countenance, all went swimming in a dim haze of resentment. He wondered what or it ever would end.

'Becky'; Scarlett Defies Nan to Call for Assistance

CHAPTER 42.

WHAT Dan Scarlett had told his host about the effect of Harkenton Manor was meant in deadly earnest. The old brick house, brooding so placidly on the pleasant hillside, seeming to slumber in the shades of trees that might have been planted in the days of Good Queen Bess, stirred an restless mind to dead dreams and retrospective longings.

Entering his tie before the long mirror in its heavy frame of oak listening to the gentle murmur of the leaves while he smoothed his hair with silver-backed military brushes, he compared the tranquillity of his own existence with the peace of the countryside; he weighed the thrill that never-ending novelty and excitement of his days against the tranquil monotony of these, and it was his own life that he found wanting.

Poking his arms into the sleeves of a dinner jacket made by the smartest Bond Street tailor who maintained a Paris branch, recarrying his figure, beginning to tend toward fullness, his face some, but showing the devastating effects of late hours and hard drinking—his arms, still heavily muscled under the black cloth, but with muscles beginning to soften from disuse, he compared all this to the lean brown cheeks, the boyish smile, the hard grace of Geoffry Travers' figure, health, fullness of complexion, color, and in the end a bitter taste of dead sea fruit. He thought of Nan, and images of her thronging about him like so many ghosts, stirred old feelings, memories that had been prompted by momentary motives, yet not unmixed with such love as even the Scarlets of this queer world know.

He saw Young Nan, innocent-eyed, eagerly watching his face as she said that first day in the small tea room in Boston. He saw Nan trusting, smiling confidently as she clung to his lapels young Nan holding the hope of salvation in her hands. He saw her tears that had been so close to his lips that blessed, unbelievable cup [illegible]

Three spade must not be bid as played "Declare Dummy," i. e., as though all four hands were exposed.

Friday's Hand as Played by Mr. Whitehead

Salient Points of the Play.

Trick 1. North makes the perfect opening lead of the ten of his longest, rather than lead the top of his sequence. This lead is conventional response to the general rule that the top card of a sequence should be led. The lead of a ten-spot by Trump is reserved to indicate with the ten at the top of an intermediate sequence, as for example with K 10 9 3. It suggests a play to exhaust South's Hearts in case North's lead is from a short suit.

Trick 2. South's return of the King of Hearts and North's play of the five mark North's original lead as having been from five cards. South therefore remaining with the Queen alone, locking North in Spades.

Trick 3. Declarer can count four tricks in Clubs, one trick in Diamonds and one Heart. Three spade tricks to make game.

Trick 6. West declines the finesse, satisfied with the game.

Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning your Bridge problems. Write to him care of this paper, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.

Fads and Fashions

The Silver Lining—To the darkest clouds is scarcely more eagerly sought than the light pastel-colored sheer dance frocks, for silver lame forms most effective under sheer net. Frequently a gown's entire bodice will be of silver trimmed in crystal fringe. Silver lace, silver spangles on chiffon, silver cloth, embroidered in colored beads, are very popular trimmings for evening frocks of this season.

"Greige" Grows Greatly in sports wear favor. Its matte, soft tan shade has always appealed to the most fastidious American women and at French resorts it is second in importance to but rarely of bright blue known as "Napoleon blue." In wool jersey this tone is especially sponsored as sports ensembles, which frequently combine a dark brown sleeveless coat with greige jersey dress or a fancy blouse with velveteen skirt and coat.

THE WITTY SAYINGS OF MEDBURY

Relief From Gas Stomach Pains Dizziness

The doctors tell us that 90 per cent of all sickness is due to stomach and bowel troubles. You can't be well if your digestion is bad; you are sure to get sick unless you relish your food, digest it properly, and keep your bowels regular.

Tanlac has a wonderful record as a relief from digestive troubles of every kind, even those of many years' standing. Read what Mr. William H. Champagne, of 841 Pleasant St., Worcester, Mass., says: "My stomach was in awful condition. I was bilious and had no appetite. After taking Tanlac, I can now eat anything without the slightest trouble afterwards, and get up mornings ready for a hard day's work."

If you suffer from gas, pains in the stomach or bowels, dizziness, nausea, constipation or torpid liver; if you have no appetite, can't sleep and are nervous and all run down, it's a sign you need Tanlac. It is good, pure medicine, made of roots, herbs and barks—nature's own remedies. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

ONE fellow was two-faced and had a blank look on each of them.

HIS head was emptier than the collection plate in a Scotch Sunday School.

A PSYCHO-ANALYST couldn't find his brains with a search warrant.

LAST year he sent six mind-readers on a wild goose chase.

SOME people are born dumb, but most of them pick it up afterwards.

THEIR gray matter turns green.

DAVID SEABURY, the famous psychologist, says he ran across a man the other day who couldn't even have a headache by himself.

HE gave his wife a piece of his mind once and she forgot to return it.

HE could have a brainstorm and his scalp wouldn't even be damp.

HIS head is what gave the Radio Corporation the idea for vacuum tubes.

HE keeps his hat on by suction.

HE had a thought the other day, but it wasn't even good for an amateur.

HE'S quite a linguist and it isn't every man who can be dumb in three languages.

HE didn't have any education. He started to college once, but he gave the correspondence school the wrong address.

AT thirty-four the doctors said he had the mind of a ten-year-old child, but they didn't give the child a name.

THE poor fellow parted his hair on the side and made himself top-heavy.

NATURE provides everybody with a good head, and it's too bad that the scientists can't furnish us with refills.

THE MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By HELEN ROWLAND.

LIFE is—or ought to be—a Great Adventure, a beautiful, exciting, delightful game of chance!

* * *

But most girls seem awfully bored and a little sad nowadays. I wonder why! The glamour seems to have gone out of the game for them. There is no star-dust in their eyes!

* * *

Everything is so real, so material, so prosaic! Men are just something to dance with, to run about with, to "catch," to marry; "boy friends," "old dears," or "good spenders."

* * *

Love is just petting or sex-appeal or applesauce. A kiss is just—a kiss.

I wonder if it is because they try to HURRY life so! To squeeze all the juice out of the fruit before it is ripe, to "live" before life comes their way.

* * *

If Youth but knew! Most women do all their real "living" after thirty.

* * *

It is then that we know how to handle the cards in the game. It is then that we love, write, sing, work or play best. Up to thirty we are merely tyros; apprentices in the shop of life!

* * *

But the young girl of today wants to know everything, experience everything, find out everything right at the start. She wants to read the last chapter first!

* * *

She is like a trunk that has never been farther than the first crossroad station, but has been pasted all over with foreign labels. She appears so sophisticated, so blase. She goes around turning on all the electric lights; but she gets no spark and no tingle out of the current.

* * *

Theoretically, she is cynical, worldly, fed-up, bored; but in reality she is all agog for LIFE!

And after all it's "NOT knowing" about life that makes it worth living!

* * *

It's not knowing what is waiting for you "just around the corner" that gives it its tang and zest.

* * *

It's the dance, the gamble, the SURPRISES that make the dull journey though this Vale of Tears supportable and turn it from a duty into an adventure.

It's not knowing where a road or a love affair will lead, that makes you want to follow. It's not knowing what "hand" Fate may deal you next that keeps you in the game!

* * *

It's not knowing who is at the other end of the wire that makes the sound of the telephone bell thrill you!

* * *

Youth is the spirit of adventure, of hope—that thrilling feeling that something delightful, new, unexpected and wonderful may happen to you at any moment. And its whole joy consists in never KNOWING what's just around the corner—or the next corner! Or the corner after that!

COURTESY IS KINDNESS TO YOUR FELLOWMEN

BY accident you have created an embarrassing situation.

If you are well-bred you will ignore it.

Effusive apologies are superfluous. To laugh makes the situation more conspicuous and may hurt someone's feelings.

You did not intend to commit an offense.

If you owe an apology, state truthfully the fact that you have made a mistake and say you are sorry. Then drop it.

It is by the manner of your disposal of unusual and unpleasant experiences that you show you are either a lady or a gentleman at heart.

True courtesy springs from kindness of heart.

Put yourself in the other's shoes and think what you would like under similar circumstances.

And above all, don't go out and tell of it unless you are very sure of your ground.

To start a story that is true and might embarrass another is rude and uncalled for and sets you down as thick-skinned even by those who laugh at your story.

A YOUNG APPETITE DIGESTS ANYTHING

Indigestion is the result of too much acid in the stomach. It sours your food, turns it into a fermenting mass, gives you sick headaches, bad breath, biliousness, shortness of breath, and that dreary, don't-care-what-happens feeling.

Pape's Diapepsin has relieved thousands of such unfortunate stomach sufferers to get their appetite back. Chew one or two tablets of Pape's Diapepsin after meal to dissolve the excess acid, and sweeten your stomach. Then your food will digest and nourish you. You will gain weight and feel fine. Pape's Diapepsin does what it promises to do. That's the reason 5 million packages are used a year.

Pape's Diapepsin will bring you relief in 5 minutes. It is sold by all drug stores.

Travel Is Necessary to See America's Progress

By B. C. FORBES.

If the South, Oct. 31.—To find out what's going on throughout the country, you must travel. There are many, many departments of vast, fundamental bearing upon our progress which never are chronicled in even the best metropolitan newspapers far from the scene. Spectacular happenings often are of infinitely less importance than silent, uninterrupted developments, especially developments in the realm of agriculture which, after all, is still our most basic industry, unsurpassed by transportation or electric power or oil or steel or automobiles or even building, since food comes before shelter.

American agriculture is making headway, particularly in its industrial aspects, so to speak.

The inevitable movement toward bigness is the cry of the small feed is making less advancement than the movement towards bigness in handling the feed after it's milling. But great agricultural enterprises, rivaling the largest in those of industry and transportation, are coming as surely as tomorrow's sunrise. Here, there, starts already have been made and these large scale farm corporations have done well.

But large-scale organization has been more conspicuous in such directions as cooperative marketing, in establishing butter and cheese and prepared milk powder and milk factories, cotton mills in cotton-growing States, sugar factories and factories to handle the cane waste, canneries for packing fruits and all kinds of vegetables, tobacco factories, power plants and transmission lines to supply electricity to farms, etc.

Consider what has been achieved in Tennessee during the last year in the dairy field alone:

The Borden Company has built a condensed milk plant at Lewisburg, a powdered milk plant at Fayetteville, collecting stations at Pulaski, Columbia and Shelbyville, representing an investment of almost $1,500,000. Some 150,000 pounds of milk is daily drawn from five counties and become bottled milk, cream, condensed or powdered milk is made into butter, about 10,000 pounds daily.

Carnation Milk has built a condensed milk plant at Murfreesboro with collecting stations in adjoining counties, at an outlay of $500,000. Capacity 150,000 pounds daily and excess butter fat is sold to the Rutherford County Cooperative Creamery, the second largest in the country, which makes it into butter.

These activities are in the blue grass basin of Middle Tennessee.

The Tri Counties Milk Co. established a $500,000 condensed milk plant at Greeneville, in East Tennessee; capacity, 100,000 pounds.

Kraft Cheese Company has opened a large factory at Dyersburg, in West Tennessee; capacity, 100,000 pounds daily.

In addition to these industrial plants founded or enlarged, immense has been the development by the enterprising, enormously rich du Ponts of a plant at Old Hickory, a suburb of Nashville, which makes, I am told, about one-fourth of the country's total production of rayon. It used wood pulp from Canada and chemicals from the East originally, but where was determined by the location here was the especially suitable water and by the labor supply. An important addition is now being made to the plant.

Two other rayon plants have been launched in East Tennessee, one by the American Bimberg Company and the other by the Glanzstoff Company, both German owned. The total investment will run into millions.

Everywhere the spirit of progress abounds. It is especially strong although most parts of the South. The truth is that the South is only now, for the first time, taking on new, vigorous, prosperous life since the war—not the World War, but the Civil War.

Home capital is multiplying. Outside capital is pouring in. Industries are springing up everywhere. Farming is becoming more business-like, more diversified. The South's popularity as a playground is rapidly extending and more and more crop of tourists is swelling the South's prosperity. The amount of money going into modern roads, to modern hotels, into modern facilities for amusement and recreation has grown by leaps and bounds.

Railroad building is active. And sports are being developed into being and enlarged at an unprecedented pace.

And perhaps best of all, as Governor Dan Moody of Texas impressed upon me, millions are being spent on education where only thousands were spent before in this land.

Get away from your home community once in a while and imbibe a new thrill over the progress of America.

JOHNSON SAYS RAILS FACE NEW U. S. RULE

Philadelphia, Oct. 31 (A.P.)—Albert B. Johnson, president of the Johnson Business Association and former president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, believes that great railroad systems of the nation may face another period of government control unless they increase their freight hauling equipment to meet the vast industrial activity now in progress for the near future.

In a letter to members of the Railway Business Association, Mr. Johnson pointed to conditions which he said indicated a great industrial activity in 1928 and warned that unless the railroads were prepared to handle the freight private ownership of the roads might be endangered.

$300,000 MORE WILL SAVE 'OLD IRONSIDES'

"very helpful" with its favorable comment on the task of saving the grand old sea fighter Constitution at the Charlestown Navy Yard.

Leaders in the world of business and finance, as well as the rank and file, want a powerful navy, and the preserved Constitution will be a potent inspiration for their efforts in that direction. We have previously stated belief that public contributions toward this cause are a "good investment." And really that was putting the facts forward mildly.

Two years ago the Secretary of the Navy, Curtis D. Wilbur, founded the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, through their Grand Exalt Ruler, Johnson T. Jones, then, to enlist the children of America and collect their mites towards the restoration of "Old Ironsides." To them, the Elks in 861 lodges have carried this patriotic message to the children.

You may recall that a few weeks ago we commented at length in this column on the demand for college professors and instructors in fields of finance and business for public life in general. The voices of Prof. Thomas Nixon Carver of Harvard over the radio reminded me that he was one of the first to get the public call. Legal Notices

CITY OF BOSTON
CITY ELECTION

City Clerk's Office, October 29, 1927.
In accordance with the provisions of the statutes concerning elections, notice is hereby given that meetings of the wardens of the City of Boston, qualified to vote for city officers, will be held at the several polling places designated for the purpose by the Board of Election Commissioners on and all such citizens will on said date, in the several precincts in which they are entitled to vote, give in their votes for three members of the School Committee, and for one member of the City Council in each ward.

Tuesday, the Eighth Day of November, 1927

The polls at said meetings will be opened at six o'clock A. M. and closed at eight o'clock P. M.

Attest:
JAMES DONOVAN, City Clerk.

TORIAL AGE OF THE ☆ ☆ BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN ☆ ☆ BOSTON OCTOBER 31, 1927

THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S PLATFORM FOR BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

For BOSTON: 1—Clean streets.
2—Solution of traffic and parking problems.
3—Better pay for honest public service.
4—An airport SECOND TO NONE.
5—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land, in order that Boston, properly supplied with first-class hotels, may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

For NEW ENGLAND: 1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council thus creating a community consciousness
2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.
3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation.
4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries.
6—Assist New England agriculture to better marketing methods.

Big and Growing Bigger

America's FOURTH City, BOSTON

One of the things this Week of Progress celebration by the Chamber of Commerce will emphasize is that, as a commercial and industrial community, Boston is a city of 1,808,345 population.

Forty towns and cities, their economic interests bound up with the banking and railroad and port facilities of their centre, comprise the REAL Boston. It is this Boston—FOURTH of the great cities of America—which is celebrating Progress Week.

The program centres in the Chamber of Commerce Building in Congress Street, its high lights the luncheons of Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, at 12:30 p. m.

Tuesday will be Civic Day. Miller McClintock, director of Mayor Nichols' street traffic survey, will discuss "Traffic Congestion and the Downtown Business District." Howard Coonley, only Boston representative in the directorate of Colonial Air Transport, Inc., will talk of "What Air Transport Means to Boston." It would be difficult to pick two subjects of more vital and immediate interest, two men better qualified to reason upon them.

Wednesday will be Trade and Industry Day. To Francis H. Sisson, vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, has been assigned the subject, "The Winds of Business—How They Blow." The title of Victor M. Cutter's paper will be "Why New England Looks Good to Me."

On Thursday, Transportation Day, members of the Chamber and their friends will hear Governor Brewster of Maine, on "A Merchant Marine Policy." Here is a topic of significance in the everyday life of the Bostonian. The head of the "greatest transportation system in the world"—President E. W. Beatty of the Canadian Pacific—will communicate his views on "The Importance of Transportation to Modern Business."

Six speakers of reputation, each an acknowledged authority, six subjects, and little or no chance for a reference to the year 1630 or "what used to be." Eyes front! No glancing backward! "Progress," Chairman B. G. Hawkins and his associates of the committee insist, "means advancement, a moving or going forward."

The MESSAGE of the Week is that as a commercial and civic community Boston is alert, active, whole-heartedly progressive and altogether in excellent health.

As Chairman Hawkins puts it, "We know what we have accomplished in the past, we realize that in recent years notable improvements have been achieved. What we need is to plan systematically for the future, prepare our industries, our commerce and our municipal facilities for the developments of tomorrow."

Progress Week will prove to be more—much more—than merely worth while. It will be notice "to whom it may concern" that the shoe and leather centre of the world, centre of the most important cotton manufacturing district in the United States, greatest of American wool markets, most up-to-date of all fishing ports, is not only prosperous but GROWING.

If you are a member of the Chamber of Commerce you will have made arrangements to hear McClintock and Coonley, Sisson and Cutter, Brewster and Beatty.

If you are not a member, the exhibits on display in the street-floor windows at Federal and Franklin Streets will suggest what the Boston Chamber of Commerce means to this Metropolitan District and what it is trying to do FOR ALL OF US.

The POPULATION of this Metropolitan District exceeds by 500,000 that of the ENTIRE STATE OF FLORIDA.

It is increased every year by approximately the total population of Asheville, N. C.

With more than 176,000 persons employed in its factories, an industrial payroll of $230,000,000 and an import trade surpassed only by that of New York City, this Metropolitan District stands out as one of the richest industrial regions of the world.

"Slipping," is it? Ask the man who says so if he knows any more jokes.

City Councillors

Seventy-five Candidates for 22 Places

With a municipal election only about a week distant there are few signs that the average Bostonian is at all interested. In an "off" year, this is by no means strange.

Seventy-five gentlemen offer themselves as candidates for the 22 memberships in the City Council. Close observers of local politics will recognize the names of Thomas A. Niland, John I. Fitzgerald, Seth Arnold, Henry Parkman, Jr., George F. Gilbody, James T. Purcell, Charles G. Keene and Frederick E. Dowling and be stumped, perhaps, if asked to identify any more.

This is no argument against the newcomers nor is it to be expected that men of national reputation will come out for the municipal Council.

For three vacancies in the School Committee there are seven candidates, one of them the Mr. Dooley who last Fall gave great anxiety to the Democratic State Committee by winning the Lieutenant-Governorship nomination hands down.

In the week which remains the good citizen will inquire about his ward candidates and do his best to send to City Hall at least the "making" of an honest and intelligent representative.

WHAT HAS WORLD GAINED BY WAR?

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE World War has been over for some time now and the question comes up: What have we gained?

When war was in progress property was being destroyed and thousands of lives extinguished. It was bruited about that it was all for a great purpose. It was a war to end war. It would be the final conflict between nations. They would now see how destructive and useless wars were. What has been the outcome?

At Geneva the other day the Japanese delegate, Adachi, deplored the ruinous competition in armaments, and Felix Cielens, Minister from Latvia, declared that old pre-war methods were still in vogue and warned the assembly that the military budgets of 1926 amounted in Europe to a billion and a half dollars, or about the same as in 1919. He also stated that there were over three million soldiers in Europe, which is only slightly less than the number in 1919, and that the technique of armies was far greater developed than before the great war.

We are living, he declared, "under the conditions of armed peace which prevailed before the war and under a system of competitive armaments, which many of us believe will sooner or later land the world in war."

In the judgment of these experts, however, the gains of the war for the world and in world terms would be nil.

Think of Europe staggering under the burden of a billion and a half dollars for its military budgets and the support of 3,000,000 soldiers! This vast sum and these great numbers of men represent no producing capital and no producing labor. They are simply being kept for possible destructive purposes.

No wonder the world is so long in getting back on its feet when it has such a terrible handicap!

Wars have been demonstrated to be worse than useless, and spending money on them is like sowing seed in the trough of the sea. It is sheer waste.

It seems as if the combined wisdom of the world should certainly be able to hit upon some plan to abolish war, some plan to relegate the force from nations to some international body.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Let the man, who would be grateful, think of repaying a kindness, even while receiving it.—Seneca.

A great man is made up of qualities that meet or make great occasions. —Lowell.

How comes it to pass, then, that we appear such cowards in resoning, and are so afraid to stand the test of ridicule? —Shaftesbury.

And from the discontent of man The world's best progress springs. —Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

To have a great man for an intimate friend seems pleasant to those who have tried it; those who have, fear it. —Horace.

It is not often that an opinion is worth expressing which cannot take care of itself. —Holmes.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I KNOW a man who had carried a bullet in his body for ten years. At the time he was shot, the surgeons thought it inadvisable to operate. When he became stronger, they discovered that Nature had taken care of it. She had walled the obstruction away from the healthy tissue and an operation was unnecessary.

Deadlier things than bullets come crashing into our lives. Hideous shocks — vicious disillusionments — heart breaking losses by death. These things are infinitely harder to manage than bullets or shrapnel. They will, unless cared for, poison the whole body of life.

It is impossible to erase such things from memory. Nor will the frankest confession or the tenderest comfort, extract the poison from them. But they may be walled off from the rest of the spirit, just as that bullet is walled off. We possess certain qualities in our own nature which will do this work for us, if we will give them a chance. Courage, common sense, humor and patience—those qualities can wall off the most grevious obstruction.

Has someone done you a great wrong and is that wrong festering in your thought, embittering you, filling you with suspicion and secret hate? Do you want to be saved from such infection? Probably not. But sooner or later you'll have to conquer this thing or it will do you deadly harm. Why not set about it now? At the next flicker of resentment, say to yourself:

"My enemy wronged me, but I am harming myself infinitely more by keeping that wrong alive. Why should I spoil my whole life just because he spoiled a little piece of it for me? I won't! I'm going to wall this thing away so that poison will no longer seep into my mind. I can not erase it from the records of my memory, but I can refuse to think about it, as I refuse to think about many other vicious or vulgar subjects. Here's where I start!"

Has your heart been broken by the loss of someone dearer than life itself? And, in addition to the inevitable grief, are there torturing memories of terrible days, which weaken and crush you? Are these memories spoiling all life for you? Say, then, to yourself—

"I will no longer think of these things which hurt so hideously. It is not loyal or healthy to do so. These memories are not really part of love. They are part of terror and pain—They are really the enemies of love, for they are keeping the beautiful memories away. I will fight them as enemies. When they come I will put them out of my mind as I would put away any other desecration. And I will prove my loyalty to my darling by living bravely, proudly, generously, thinking only those clean, fine thoughts which will be a fit memorial to our dear love."

Truly that is the right way to treat a bullet in your soul.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

OH, it's hurry, hurry, hurry, and it's flurry, flurry, flurry, keeping moving with the hours flying past; rushing outward every season heedless of all rhyme or reason, with no aim in view except just moving fast. All this hurry makes men blunder; but they never pause to wonder if they couldn't make more speed by taking time; no one asnes do they untangle of life's web, but rush and wrangle, still complaining that it's all an uphill climb. In their folly and their blindness they've no time for common kindness, and no care for all love's tender little ways; ever going faster, faster, speed becomes their final master and the ruler of their reckless rushing days. Oh, it's more of hurry, hurry, more of weariness and worry, till the mass of men forget life's real intent; they forget true use and duty and love; happiness and beauty that are found by simpler souls who seek content.

MILITARY TRAINING AND VERDUN

By Garrett P. Serviss,
Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

I WAS present at Verdun during the reunion there of the American Legion and the French army. In the presence of the great "ossuaire" that towers on Douaumont heights, guarding the bones of 400,000 soldiers, fallen in that mighty battle that raged during long-drawn-out months on those wonderful forti fied hills, and that finally proclaimed that France was not to be destroyed.

Ten years ago they fought that marvelous fight, but still, after so long an interval, and notwithstanding the increased cultivation of the blood-drenched land, many square miles of the surrounding territory are thickly pitted with those terrible "shell-craters," the sight of which turns the thought of human beings fighting into a horror.

No one can look upon the dreadful scars that the earth bears around Verdun without revulsion of feeling capable of causing even the most confirmed "militarist" to rate and despise war. The vast soldiers' cemeteries with their endless ranks of white crosses seem to be calling to a mad world to have pity upon its innocent children.

And the mad world shakes its gory locks, and staring at the dreadful spectacle produced by its insanity, seems forced to listen. For, just at this moment we read every day of the effects of the strong current of anti-war sentiment which is turning the minds of the nations toward a combined effort to abolish and to outlaw war. It is the dawning of only a peace by promise, yet even a barbarian could hardly refuse to wish it success.

But even those who mingle ballet with hope in this matter must cultivate precaution as well. They must remember that there is no sounder law known to psychology than that opportunity breeds temptation.

If war is made an outlaw in human society, how are the peaceful to be protected against the outlaw? Unless human nature is miraculously changed the protection can only be obtained by arms.

That means preparation, military training, vigilance, loyalty, unshaken patriotism, sacrifice, belief in high ideals of human capacity.
